W. B. Wood, a cripple with both legs off at the knees, was burned to death at 4 o'clock this morning in a fire which broke out in his room in the lodging house at 517 West Superior street.

The blaze is thought to have been started by a pipe which he was smoking when he retired to his room.

Wood set his own death trap. When he got into his room he pushed the head of the bed in front of the door to prevent any one robbing him or disturbing him during the night.

The position of the body, found against the door with the hand vainly striving to reach the doorknob, showed that he had made a desperate struggle for life. But in his crippled condition and surrounded by the dense smoke, he had fallen back uncon-

JURY TAMPERING IN BROWNE CASE?

Grant McCutcheon Is Quizzed
By the Grand Jury.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Grant McCutcheon, one of the jury which acquitted Lee O'Neill Brown of a charge of bribing legislators to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator, was taken before the grand jury to be interrogated concerning allegations that illegal means were taken to influence his judgment as a juror.

Attorney Epstein visited the state's attorney's office yesterday at the request of Mr. Wayman. Mr. Epstein was accompanied by his attorney, Mr.
Brady. The latter said that Epstein could gain nothing by talking with Mr. Wayman concerning the jury bribing rumors.

UNUSUALLY COLD
IN THE SOUTH

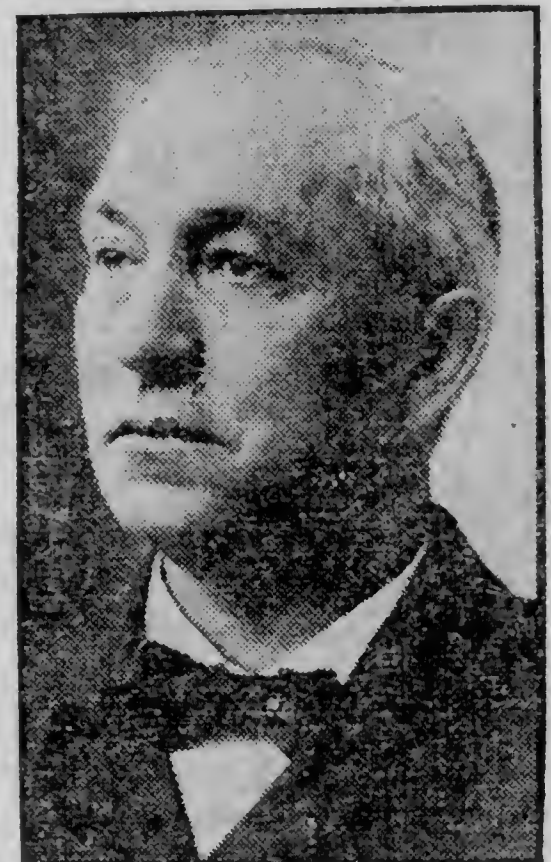

Frost Is Predicted for Georgia and Northern Florida.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 29.—Unusually cold weather prevails in practically the entire South today. Remarkably low temperatures are reported from Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi and Northern Alabama.

Northern and Central Louisiana and Mississippi report temperatures ranging from 24 to 32 degrees. Frost is predicted for Georgia and Northern Florida tonight. The weather bureau predicts fair and warmer weather for the greater part of the Southern states tomorrow.

Further reports of damage to un-picked cotton were made from many points in the South today.

Snow in Pennsylvania.
Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 29.—All Northwestern Pennsylvania experienced a snowstorm of not more than a few inches last night. While this city received but flurries during the afternoon, reports from Oil City, Titusville, Meadville and Carry in the Northwest record

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 29.—George late Senator J. P. Dolliver. He was a member of congress from 1891 to 1899, and is owner of the Sioux City Journal.

Meet.

Big Gordon Bennett Cup Event
Begun at Belmont Park.

Belmont Park, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Two contestants—Alfred Le Blanc of the French team and Walter S. Brookins of the American team—were injured in the wrecking of their aeroplanes shortly after the start today of the race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, the international event of the aeronauts meet being held here.

Claude Grahame-White of the English team covered the course of 63.1 miles, or twenty times around the Belmont course, in 1 hour, 1 minute and 43 seconds, flying in a northwest wind that varied from ten to 15 miles an hour.

Alexander Ogilvie of the English team essayed the flight, but gave it up after covering several laps.

Up to this afternoon none of the other eligible contestants had started, evidently preferring to await milder airs. Neither Le Blanc nor Brookins was seriously hurt.

Close Call for Latham.
Latham slipped and almost went into the club house on his fifteenth lap. He saved himself by being held here.

When the start turned from the course and went to his hangar, his time for the fifteenth lap being 58.36 seconds, slower by 4.25.55 than Grahame-White on the same lap.

Seventy Miles an Hour.
Le Blanc's fast time, it is thought by many, would have won him the James Gordon Bennett trophy had he not been wrecked on his last lap. His time for the nineteenth lap was 52:42.7. He of $60 in a shell game, went to Chicago avenue police station yesterday and asked that efforts be made to arrest the swindlers. He said he met two strangers at the Chicago & Northwest-to show him the ruins of a factory which had been destroyed.

"When he got a short distance from the lake we saw three men standing about a small table," said Rupert. "We were soon engaged in some kind of a

LAND FRAUD INQUIRY GROWS

Water Right Case in Washington Before the Grand Jury.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 29.—Proceedings in the federal grand jury room, which have been occupied the last week with the hearing of testimony in the Alaska coal land frauds, were varied yesterday with the introduction of testimony relative to the obtaining of timber and mineral lands in Stevens county, Washington, in the Pend Oreille river district north to the Canadian boundary.
About thirty witnesses were examined, including T. J. Postey, head of the government secret service at Seattle, and numerous homesteaders. It is said that the hearing involves the alleged usurpation of water rights in the northern part of the state.

The testimony was in connection with the location of people on government lands, and the subsequent transfer of the land through power of attorney, in which allegations of fraud are alleged to have materialized.

of the St. Paul dentist, who a week ago ran down and killed Mrs. Caroline Wilson, while driving his automobile at University and Bedford avenues southeast, has been indicted by the Hennepin county grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree.

Fully 2,500 Duluthians Hear Candidates Present Their Case.

Some Plain Facts Regarding Clapp and Eberhart
Are Stated.

Meeting Is Climax of Triumphant Tour of Northern Minnesota.

James Gray, Democratic candidate for governor, was given an ovation in Duluth last night at a meeting in the Armory, attended by about 2,500 people, which was a fitting climax to the successful series of meetings held on the ranges yesterday and Thursday.
Fred W. Johnson, candidate for secretary of state, was also given a hearty greeting, and the speeches made by these two speakers were frequently interrupted by cheers and applause.

John Jensen, Jr., presided at the meeting, and in his introductory remarks paid eloquent tribute to the memory of John A. Johnson.

James Gray's speech was begun under such circumstances that emotion prevented him from plunging directly into the discussion of the issues. The demonstration was one of the most enthusiastic that could be given a man unknown to his audience except through the newspapers. Then, when he had secured the undivided attention of the audience he began his speech, leading off with a story that brought down the house. It was soon followed by another, and another, all good, with the result that his hearers were in a mood to pay the closest of attention to whatever he might have to say.

To illustrate the feeling of some on the method of his selection as Democratic nominee, he told of a young Scotchman at the altar, who when asked if he was willing to take the woman for his wife, replied: "I'm willing, but I'd rather have her sister."

He told of the first and original standpatter, a hairy and reactionary cave dweller, who squinted at the sun and said: "I can't stand this light.
Let's go back to the caves." Shouts of laughter and a thunder of applause rewarded this flight of imagination.

Although Mr. Gray was the last speaker in the evening, people continued to come into the Armory during the delivery of his address, most of them going into the gallery, as there was only standing room visible on the main floor.

Denounces Miller.

Without naming him, Mr. Gray denounced Congressman Miller for his betrayal of his constituency, and as he continued to talk along that line applause was increasingly frequent.
The names of Lind and of Johnson started outbursts of applause, and when the speaker referred to Thomas

By J. F. T. O'Connor.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—One week from Tuesday and the campaign in North Dakota will be closed. The past week has been, perhaps, the most interesting and exciting the politicians have seen. Some of the best speakers in the country have been called to the assistance of either side. Senator W. E. Purcell, the Democratic senator from this state, appointed by Governor John Burke to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Thompson, opened the week in Grand Forks by a speech Monday evening. He was followed Tuesday evening by Senator Moses Clapp of Minnesota and on Wednesday evening W. J.
Bryan spoke in the Auditorium. Saturday morning Ex-Governor John Lind of Minnesota presented the issues of the day.

Chicago Board of Trade
Man Ends Contempt

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Willis Counsel-was imprisoned for three months in the Cook county jail for contempt of court in connection with his obtaining a divorce from his insane wife and subsequent marriage to Miss Clara French, completed his sentence and was released today.

The contempt of court lay in his concealment at the divorce hearing that his wife was insane and in a sanitarium. Judge Cheever, who heard the case, previous to sentencing Counsel-man, set aside his divorce decree, rendering his marriage to Miss French void.

LIND SPEAKS AT CROOKSTON

Large Audience Listens to Exposure of Eberhart's Record.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before an immense audience last night, ex-Governor John Lind made a very earnest address, in which he charged President Taft with selecting a cabinet which represented the interests from top to bottom and pictured Governor Eberhart as the placid and contented plant of cool Smith. He said the governor had a golden grain belt seal of silence over his mouth and that, regardless of party, the men should be supported who had declared themselves for county option. He said the United States senate was the seat of national corruption and that the state senate was the seat of state corruption; that the fight must be directed against those who had stood with the interests, and that candidates should be judged by the company they keep. He ridiculed Eberhart's campaign speech and declared it the most flimsy of any he had ever read, and stated that as a standpatter Governor Eberhart and Cannon and Aldrich completely backed off the boards.

Mr. Lind extolled the primary law as the most effective weapon yet devised to break up county rings and stop graft, because the people nominated the candidates, who must therefore be good men. He painted conditions in St. Paul, Minneapolis and other large cities as intolerable, because of the brewery dominance in municipal politics. He did not want to be understood as denouncing the decently conducted saloon or brewery where the people wanted them and did not denounce the small brewery.

Mr. Lind was preceded by Hon.
Frank Coulter of Oregon, who made a very entertaining address in favor of the initiative and referendum.

night, when ex-Governor John Lind of Minnesota will be the speaker. Special trains are to be run from Grand Forks and other points.

CITY MAY HAVE LONG NEEDED POLICE SURGEON

Duluth will have a physician to act as police surgeon as well as assistant health commissioner, if the council acts favorably upon the request of Health Commissioner H. E. Webster Monday night.

The city has long been in need of a doctor to attend the injured men who come to the attention of the police. They are much more common than is generally known.

Frequently a man under the influence of liquor gets badly hurt and is taken to the hospital. Many times the injured man is turned over to the officers. Quite often fights take place which make men fit subjects for the hospital.

As it is now a physician from the outside has to be called in. Sometimes it is pretty hard to get one, particularly if the call happens to be in the middle of the night or early in the morning. The injured man suffers, occasionally it is impossible to get a doctor for a considerable length of time. Only a comparatively short time ago Emil Lueck died of death after a fight with Fredrick Otto Brandt in front of the Odd Fellows' hall, on Lake avenue. The police couldn't get a doctor to bind up the wound and stop the flow of blood.

With a capable man acting as police surgeon this wouldn't have happened. He would have been on the ground within a few minutes, had regulations been as they should. Other similar cases dating back further might be cited.

Monday night Health Commissioner Webster will ask the council to allow sufficient additional funds to employ Ignatius J. Murphy in that capacity. He will have supervision of the contagious diseases and also be at the call of the police for emergency cases. The council will likely refer the matter to a committee for investigation and consider the proposition more fully when that committee brings in its report.

MISCONDUCT THE CHARGE

Attorney A. E. McManus Asks a New Trial for Serefin Petros.

Claims Assistant County Attorney's Remarks Influenced Jury Against Defendant.

Attorney A. E. McManus appeared before Judge William A. Cuntz yesterday morning and asked for a new trial for Serefin Petros who was convicted of second degree murder a few weeks ago. The attorney for the defense stated that there was misconduct on the part of Warren E. Greene, assistant county attorney, during the closing arguments were made.

While Mr. McManus was addressing the jury, Mr. Greene is said to have taken exception to his remarks and stated that there were a number of men in the room who could testify as to the personal character of Petros. Mr. McManus says that these remarks were made with an idea of influencing the jury against the defendant. He claims that the jury was influenced by the remarks of the assistant county attorney and that the jury was prejudiced against the defendant.

Mr. Greene followed Mr. McManus with arguments against a new trial. No decision was rendered by Judge Cuntz.

Petros killed his shipmate, John Hendrickson, on board the steamer James Corrigan, July 29 last. The shooting was the outcome of a quarrel that had started in a small boat while on the way to the carrier. Petros kicked

PLANS TREATING ADVANCED CASES

State Sanatorium Board Considers Building Another Hospital.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. J. L. Camp, a member of the advisory board of the state sanatorium for consumptives, is planning an additional hospital to take care of the advanced cases of consumption. The sanatorium at Walker takes only curable cases. The institution which Dr. Camp is desirous of establishing is one which will take the more advanced cases, which also in many instances are considered hopeless. As far as known, no state possesses such a hospital and its adoption and inauguration will place Minnesota in the front rank of the states combating the white plague.

BE GOOD ON HALLOWEEN

Police Given Instructions to Be More Strict Than Usual.

Extra Plain Clothes Men Sworn in for Special Duty.

Be good on Halloween—that is—do not do anything for which you might be sorry.

That's the advice of the police to that part of the public which exhibits tendencies to destroy property and do other things which are not countenanced by the law.

Maybe the boys will be able to beat the "jiggers" to it, but they are taking a long change.

More officers than ever before will be on the job that particular night. Half of the regular patrol force will be on the streets in plain clothes. They will be put in all sections of the city and the boys will not be able to tell them from any other citizen who may happen to be about. In addition to these at least thirty other extra men will be sworn in for special duty.

The orders issued by Chief Troyer are the strictest that have ever been put out from the headquarters station. A bit of foolishness will be tolerated, but nothing serious. There's been some trouble already, and the authorities are in no mood to allow any one to come too far across the line.

As a result of a previous Halloween prank four youths will be arraigned in juvenile court next Saturday. Their names are Inman Moulty, Charles Demineck, Vernon Nylén and Joseph Motzlik. Several nights ago they demolished a wagon belonging to the Hicks Market company. They took it from the place it had been left over night, hauled it along Sixth street and pitched it over a picket fence into a deep gulch. The police investigated the case the next day. The names of the boys said to be responsible were obtained by Detectives Schulte and Irvine.

CONTRACT FOR SPOONER SCHOOL

Building Will Be Rebuilt and Town Hall Will Be Erected.

F. L. Young returned yesterday from Spooner, where he let two important contracts in the process of rebuilding the burned town. The rebuilding of the Spooner school, for which Mr. Young prepared the original plans, was let to C. E. Wierschke of Glenwood, Wis., the contract price being $10,000. Mr. Wierschke was also awarded the contract for the erection of the new city hall at Spooner. It will be a brick building, 35 by 85 feet, and will cost $12,500.

While he was in the border towns Mr. Young made plans for two temporary frame school buildings to be built at Baudette. They will each be 24 by 40 feet and will be comfortable and well constructed, although they will be built only for temporary use. The people of Baudette expect to build a permanent school next year. Mr. Young has also made plans for residences for C. L. Isted and F. Noble at Spooner. They will each cost $4,500.

BOTH SIDES ARE COVERING STATE

Democrats and Republicans Busy on Hustings in North Dakota.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor John Burke's campaign efforts this week have been confined to the northwestern part of the state. Auto tours have been made and four to eight speeches delivered daily. Brugger and Purcell, candidates for the senate and Hildreth and Casey, candidates for congress, also have been very active. Aside from attorney Burke, Whittlesey for insurance commissioner and Nichols for attorney general are the only nominees making an active campaign.

C. A. Johnson, Republican nominee for governor, has put in a strenuous week in the eastern part of the state. Senator McCumber, Congressman Gronna and Hanna, Nominer Helgeson for congress and others on the Republican state ticket have been very active and are reported effective.

FIREMEN WENT IN WRONG DIRECTION

Cloquet Fire Fighters, Misdirected, Arrived After Home Was Burned.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire yesterday entirely destroyed the home of Oscar Bjork, with its contents. In the Northern lumber company's addition. Through some error, the firemen rushed to the eastern portion of the city, nearly a mile from the blaze, and later when they arrived on the scene, the home was practically a mass of ruins. The owner sustained some loss, although he carried $700 insurance on the residence and furniture. An overhauled stove is said to have caused the blaze.

LEAK CAUSES HEAVY LOSS

Broken Pipe Damages Shoe Stock of Pantan & White Store.

The Pantan & White company sustained a heavy loss early yesterday morning when a leak in a water pipe in offices over the shoe department caused water to drop down on a large part of the new stock of all winter shoes, which were just placed on the shelves. The leak is supposed to have occurred shortly after the time of closing the store Thursday night. For the water must have dripped on the shoes all night to have spread over the expanse it did.

The water ran down the south wall and touched every pair of shoes on the shelves on that wall. It also penetrated to the stock room and damaged a large quantity of women's shoes, valued at $1,000. The damage was such that the shoes cannot be sold as new.

The principal damage was to Nettleton $6 and 47 shoes and the "P. & W. Special" brand shoes. The shoes, for the most part, were in men's and boys' black and tan leather and imported French calf. The finest shoes on the large stock of the partnership, as the felt stock had just been received, the loss is a serious one.

FINDS ARE VALUABLE

Cuyuna Range Graphite Deposits Are Showing Up Well.

Analysis Shows It to Be Highest Grade Found in America.

Judging from recent finds and analyses, the deposits of graphite on the Cuyuna range promise to be almost as valuable as the iron deposits, and there is the possibility that the range will become even more noted for its graphite than for its iron.

Up in section 22-136-26, about three miles north of Rabbit Lake, P. R. Foley of Aitkin has struck a deposit of graphite fifty-eight feet deep according to Capt. Thurber, who arrived in Duluth this morning from Deerwood. The graphite shows the following analysis:

Soluble residue 10.87
Graphite 52.83
Silica 15.23
Insoluble residue 22.67

Total 100.00

Mr. Foley first went through fifty-seven feet of good shipping ore, then through the graphite and later into ore again. This is considered a remarkable formation by mining men, but it exists on the Cuyuna, wherever Graphite has been found.

Up to the present time the highest grade of graphite found in the United States averaged 25 per cent, and the famous deposit at L'Anse, which averages only 15 per cent, although it has been mined for thirty years. It has many times more valuable than iron ore.

Graphite has also been found on eleven farms owned by Captain Thomas Feigh in 136-25, just east of the Foley property. He drilled last week, and found fifty feet of graphite.

Manlaughter Charge Against Lumbman Dismissed in Police Court.

The manlaughter charge against H. R. Corey, accused in connection with the death of Thomas Cavanaugh, a senior, who died as a result of injuries sustained when Corey's automobile struck him, was dropped yesterday in municipal court.

Acting Judge St. John decided that the state had failed to prove negligence on the part of the defendant, and ordered the case dismissed and the defendant discharged.

It is reported that the relatives of Cavanaugh will start a damage suit against Corey as a result of the accident. It is understood that George C. Cooper, a local attorney has been retained by them.

It is possible that a settlement will be made, but Corey and that the case will never come to trial.

doctors are curing every case they take for treatment. I have not seen one dissatisfied patient in their offices. They are all getting well so fast they are surprised, and are all boosters like myself. I am so relieved I feel like telling my friends and all who are crippled to go there immediately and be relieved of their aches and pains.

It is the greatest invention I ever saw for treating the sick, and heat is a most natural method. Every man, woman and child has felt the good of its application in some form or other. All animals apply it in some form or other. Loughney & Loughney apply 550 deg. Fahrenheit and over to the weakest invalids with nothing but the best results. They baked potatoes to a crisp in the same oven I was being baked in, and still the treatments are pleasant. I live at Virginia, Minn. My place of business is at 225 Chestnut street, and I'll gladly substantiate the above. Yours truly,

I have been a sufferer from chronic rheumatism and catarrh for 20 solid years and tried all kinds of medicines and doctors, also springs at different places from Michigan to Salt Lake. My case was called incurable. I was decided to call on Loughney & Loughney by friends of mine. Am thankful to say that I got relief at once and say to everybody suffering as I was, to lose no time, but go to the bakers. I tell you those Bakers Own salutation is free.

some hand-bills, and on the top line it says "Citizens' League" and beneath were the words "The Honorable Moses Clapp will address the people of Mead county." Nothing there indicating he would address a Republican meeting, or anything about the tonnage tax, nothing to show that it would be even a political matter. Now, when Clapp can go about and address the citizens in that manner perhaps (can address the people as citizens. This seems to be a great year for joint debates in which the Democrats do the talking and the Republicans form the audience.

"When it is a year when, as Mr. Johnson told you, although there is not very much politics, there are at least there is an issue between privilege and the common people, there is an issue between the standstill and the progressive—a new in form but it is as old as the government.

"When the government was formed, Alexander Hamilton said the people could not be trusted, and against him stood Thomas Jefferson, who said the people can and must be trusted.

"We followed the ideas of Jefferson rather than of Hamilton, and I can imagine that on that occasion some early individual came out of the cave and squinted at the sun, and said, 'What is that?' and then he went back into the cave. But I believe the issue of government was decided when President Taft called the congress of the United States into a session of peace and equity and justice, and when he laid down to them the line to be followed, and when they followed it, a great vote on his promise that he would represent only the difference between the cost of production and the cost of distribution. Let congress loose upon the subject we found that they revised the tariff in suit themselves instead of in suit to the people. They went up on the necessities of life, and then a great war of the country found upon the formation of the people a new spirit. Men began to ask 'Is it worth the price?' and the people began to fight as Republicans and Democrats with the special interest groups together and took away from the speaker the arbitrary power of protection. That was a victory for the people of this country, an affirmation of their right to the government.

"Now, some people have said that the North is a great power, and that it is a great power to have a committee to the house to appoint the committee that gave us that absolutely arbitrary power. When it came from the house of representatives it was a good bill, but when it got to the senate it was called Speaker Cannon substituted two men to represent the people of this country, and then they were absolutely whipped upon the formation of the people a new spirit. Men began to ask 'Is it worth the price?' and the people began to fight as Republicans and Democrats with the special interest groups together and took away from the speaker the arbitrary power of protection. That was a victory for the people of this country, an affirmation of their right to the government.

"Last night's meeting was an extremely interesting one, from more than one point of view. The audience was large, and the speakers were of high caliber. The meeting was held in the hall of the Democratic Club, and the speakers were Mr. Johnson, Mr. Gray, and Mr. Johnson.

"JIM" GRAY.

Early in the campaign The Herald noted the interesting fact that wherever the Democratic government made a campaign speech, he came to town as James Gray and left it as "Jim" Gray. That means something. It means a lot, and now Duluth and the other communities on Mr. Gray's schedule in St. Louis and Lake counties are in a position to understand it. For the successor of John Lind and John A. Johnson at the head of the Democratic ticket faced a dozen or so audiences yesterday and the day before, coming to them as James Gray and leaving them as "Jim" Gray.

He came to Duluth merely as a name at the head of the ticket. He left it a living individual, with strong personality and warm human sympathies, and with that strange, indescribable faculty of reaching out through an audience and knitting its members to him in the bonds of that human brotherhood whose doctrines he preaches and practices.

Jim Gray left a deep impress upon the minds and hearts of his hearers in St. Louis county. In speeches wholly void of bombast and claptrap he made it clear that he stands for men, that he believes in humanity and would give it the power to govern itself, free of the intruding fingers of greed. His is a moral crusade in behalf of human rights, of the right of humanity to decide its own policies and conduct its own affairs in its own interests. His stand is a bold defiance of the special interests that through the manipulation of conventions and campaign committees and the subtle selection of obedient candidates, arrogantly seek to divert the public service to their own uses.

And, above all, there is manifest the sincerity of the man, the firmness of his convictions and the simple honesty of his ambition to give his life to the service of his fellows. With it all is a personality that with earnestness and dignity and self-reliant courage makes clear the ability of the man to make his professions good in practice.

Jim Gray has made good as a candidate for the governorship. None of his hearers at last night's meeting could withhold from him the respect and admiration that his earnest convictions and his bold challenge of the wrong things in public life command. When he is elected—and he is going to be elected—he will make good as governor.

THE UNIVERSITY AND THE CITY.

The Socialists, who lately came into complete control of the government of the city of Milwaukee, greatly to the amazement of those who had not been keeping track of the Socialist gains in that community, bid fair to give about as successful a demonstration of city government for the benefit of the people as this country ever has seen. The reason isn't that the government is Socialist, necessarily; it is that the men in control of it are trying simply to give good government, and that they are not hampered in that attempt by what the practice in city government has been, by obligations to any special interest, or by considerations of party success at whatever cost to the city.

When the Socialist mayor of Milwaukee wanted a health commissioner, he didn't search the ranks of the Socialist party. He went out looking for the best health officer he could find, and he picked a Republican. The case was typical. Anxious to avail themselves of the best help available to serve their purpose of making the city government as nearly ideal as possible, the city officials have turned to the University of Wisconsin, and the result is the establishment in the Milwaukee city hall of an office over which appears this sign: "The University of Wisconsin—Extension Division—Municipal Bureau."

Municipal government is the weakest spot in this country, and nowhere can the energies of a state university be better applied than to the solving of the problems of the city. In such a state university as that of Wisconsin—and Minnesota can do as well—there are men abundantly fitted to help city officials who are really trying to put city government on a business basis. The new relationship between the University of Wisconsin and the city of Milwaukee is a credit to the university and to the Socialist government of Milwaukee.

The Wisconsin university is not a Socialist institution, and it is just as ready to serve any other kind of administration as it is to serve a Socialist administration. Only it has happened that the only municipality to call upon the state university for its help is one controlled by Socialists.

One of the special features of the work of the University of Wisconsin is its particular attention to social and civic problems. In these lines it has been doing great work for Wisconsin. And now Milwaukee has developed a principle of city government that is ready and anxious to draw upon these resources.

One of the first and fundamental needs in municipal government is a scientific and systematic method of cost-keeping. The purchasing department of the city, the public works department, the accounting—all of these things, constantly increasing, need above everything else system and order. The cost unit system has become the foundation of every successful modern business. The successful city cannot hope to be an exception to this rule. Yet what, for instance, does anybody in the city of Duluth know about cost units in connection with city business?

The Milwaukee administration has put John R. Commons of the state university in charge of this work, and he will prepare for the city this fundamental requirement of business-like and economical government. Also, the city will have a municipal reference library, patterned after the legislative reference bureau at the state university. The city, too, sought a model public service franchise. It found that the University of Wisconsin had been for years compiling material on which such a franchise must be based; so the city sent to the university for this material, and the university sent it and with it an expert to interpret it and help work a satisfactory franchise out of it.

Finally, the university is establishing in the city of Milwaukee an "institute of municipal and social service," the purpose of which is to "establish in Milwaukee a center of study, information and training in social reform, social welfare and municipal efficiency."

How commendable these earnest efforts for civic betterment make the heedless, thoughtless, unscientific, political methods of conducting city business that prevail in most cities!

HUMBUG!

The News Tribune, the local organ of Ed Smith, Eberhart, Miller and standpatism of various sorts, gravely informs its readers that the battle is over. Canionism was an issue two years ago, all right enough, but it isn't an issue this year, because it is settled. Furthermore, Congressman Miller settled it, the News Tribune says.

What can explain why Congressman Miller is making no pledges to the voters this year, and is making no promises to work and vote for the extinction of Canionism and for the passage of measures that will drive the swine pack of Special Privilege out of the granary of the people's wealth. If the fight is over, and the battle won, there is nothing left to do but pass the appropriation bills; and therefore, of course, there is nothing for a candidate to make promises about except, perhaps, economy, which nobody seems to think about.

But having Canionism settled to the satisfaction of the local organ of standpatism isn't quite the same thing as having it settled to the satisfaction of the people. In such matters, the News Tribune is altogether too easily satisfied.

Having Canionism settled to the satisfaction of Congressman Miller, too, is very different from having it settled to the satisfaction of the people, for Congressman Miller has shown himself to be altogether too easily satisfied in such matters.

But the News Tribune says that Canionism is no longer an issue because it is settled, and that Congressman Miller settled it. No doubt he settled it by going to congress with his promises of uncompromising hostility to Cannon still ringing in the ears of those whom he had hoodwinked into voting for him, and then voting to have tariff revision conducted in a house dominated by the Cannon autocracy, and to have the proceedings governed by the infamous rules which gave Cannon his power.

Canionism is not settled. It is still an issue, and a more vital issue than ever because Cannon, who typified it, is himself out of the way as an issue.

The moment it became clear that Cannon, as the typification of Canionism, was hated by the people and that his end was near, he was immediately deserted by the special interests he had served, and it was made clear that he would not again be speaker of the house. A plan was laid to put in his place somebody who would do his work as he ever did, but who would not, for a time at least, be so objectionable to the people. Cannon's usefulness to Special Privilege was ended when his popularity vanished. Somebody was needed, then, who would do as he did without getting hated for it.

If the Republicans control the next house of representatives,—which fortunately is not likely,—they will select as speaker some man like Smith of Iowa or Olmsted of Pennsylvania, either of whom would serve the special interests just as faithfully, and betray the people's cause just as zealously, as Cannon ever did.

Real progressives like Lindbergh, Davis, Mardock and Lenroot will not vote for such a man for speaker, and they are telling the voters that they will not. There is no attempt, in their districts, to make the voters believe that Canionism is no longer an issue.

But in this district the Republican congressman and his standpat Republican organ are trying to pull the wool over the people's eyes and make them believe that the fight is won. That stand is nine parts humbug and one part brazen effrontery. It presumes the voters to be a herd of silly sheep that will follow self-constituted leaders in the name of party regularity, and co-operate in the plan to supplant Cannon with a despot who has yet to earn the people's hatred.

BRITISH JUSTICE AND AMERICAN.

To the chorus of reproaches against American justice because it compares so unfavorably in its processes with British justice as exemplified in the Crippen case, centers one discordant note.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says: "A platitudinous and frequently repeated remark is to the effect that the Crippen trial shows the vast difference between English and American methods of court procedure. It is said that such celebrity and such avoidance of technical delays manifest the superiority of the British method of administering criminal justice."

"But there are reasons for not considering the Crippen case as typical. In the first place the defendant is an American, and an average London jury would consider it fairly good fun to hang an American on general principles. Crippen, if he does go to the gallows, will in fact be hanged on general principles. The evidence against him would not suffice in an American court of law. Nearly everybody in England believes that Crippen killed his wife. But believing and proving are two different things. In London, apparently, mere belief, unsupported by legal proof, is sufficient to warrant the imposing of the death penalty. The evidence against Crippen was all circumstantial, and very slight at that. Yet it took the jury only half an hour to reach its verdict of guilty. So short a deliberation on so important a case was little short of indecent."

"If Crippen is hanged very few will believe that his punishment is unmerited. At the same time it should not be forgotten that courts have erred and public opinion has erred in condemning men without substantial evidence, merely because appearances have been damning against them. At any rate the Crippen case does not afford any substantial proof of the superiority of the British courts over those of America. At one extreme the Thaw case may stand as an example of American methods, but the violently contrasted Crippen case at the other extreme should not be quoted as a sufficient proof of British efficiency and business-like methods."

We quote these strictures because there is another side to the discussion besides that most in evidence, and because it is hard to see how that other side could have been made stronger. We don't believe Crippen was convicted because he was an American, or that British juries take pleasure in convicting Americans, even though it is seldom that they get a chance to do so. The evidence against Crippen, stripped of its flimsy disguise, left no reasonable doubt of his guilt. British justice is not based on public opinion any more than that of America, if so much. Clever lawyers in this country would have spun out the Crippen trial to a much greater length, and they might have thrown more doubt on the situation than there was left after the lord chief justice had quizzed the witnesses for the defense. Also, they would have had more lee-way than the British bench gives them.

The Crippen case is not the first case, by any means, that has shown that criminals have short shrift in Britain. Viewed from the standpoint of protection of society, the British practice is good. Viewed from the standpoint of the innocent man who may get entangled in a coil of circumstantial evidence, the British practice seems dangerous; though ours, unquestionably, leans too far the other way. Technicalities that give every advantage to the accused had their origin in the days when death was the penalty for most offenses. Great Britain seems to have cut away from these things. America still clings to them.

Yet it must not be overlooked that Galsworthy's strong play "Justice," an attack upon British criminal practice, exposed vast injustices and has set the British public to thinking whether, after all, the practices that America is now commending so unreservedly do not often work out dreadful injustices.

HALLOWEEN.

When the frost whitens the sidewalks, when the brown leaves are swirled by crisp breezes that agitate the baring limbs of the trees, when the glory of summer has faded from the crimson and brown of early autumn into the drab desolation soon to be mercifully covered by a soft blanket of snow, then comes Halloween, when spirits of mischief stalk abroad and hold full sway until midnight clocks herald the beginning of All Saints' day and scatter the impish crew whose pranks have disturbed the night.

Just now, no doubt, you are engaged in giving wise counsel to the buoyant and irrepressible small boy in your house, and telling him how naughty it is to play mischievous tricks on Halloween or on any other day. You are sternly telling him that he must stay in the house on the night of the last day of October, well knowing that if your orders are to be obeyed you will have to chain the young man to the bedpost.

Also, perhaps, you are letting your mind run back over the fatal years to the time when you were a small boy yourself, and had stern parents talking to you in exactly the way you are talking to your boy now. You are remembering how you sat meekly around during the early evening, and astonished your mother by insisting on going to bed at an hour much earlier than the usual time when, protesting that you only wanted to finish the chapter, you were hustled off to bed by an indignant parent. You are remembering, perhaps, how a little later you slipped out of your window, slid down the kitchen roof, dropped lightly on the edge of the rain barrel, cautiously set foot on the ground, and scampered away to join "the gang," carefully holding in your pent-up yells of glee until you got safely out of hearing from the house. And then—what of those wise parental counsels of sobriety and consideration for the feelings of others? Every movable game was your meat, and you moved it far. You tick-tacked at your neighbor's window, frightening Mrs. J. Albert Clark and the Clark girls out of their wits. You threw beans at the windows of the man who owned most of the mortgages in town, and some of them hit. The rest dropped on the porch, and Mr. Skinnham might have been heard muttering anathemas as he came out in his stocking feet to chase you away, and stepped on them.

This was merely the trying-out stage, and these the palest tricks in your repertoire. You—without capable assistance—carefully removed the sign from Mr. Rauschmitt's "lager beer" saloon, and as carefully placed it over the door of Jane Pettigill's millinery parlors. You took the barber's stick-candy pole and put it in front of the hardware store a couple of blocks away. You put the hardware sign in front of the candy store, and the cigar store's wooden Indian on the steps of the First M. E. church. You slipped Deacon Fourthly's old buggy out of the barn, ran it down the alley to the lively stable, took it apart, hoisted its several pieces to the cupola on top of the stable, and there put it together again, so that it was the wonder of the community when it was observed in the morning, perched there in rakish security as though the precarious tops of lively stable cupolas were just the proper places for well-behaved buggies to spend the night. You took Deacon Fourthly's sober old nag and Jack Gayboy's swift pacer out of their stalls, and switched them about so that their owners looked amazed upon changeling steeds in the morning.

In short, if there was any devilry you didn't do, it was because you didn't think of it.

Oh, you! with your wise advice and counsel of early-to-bed on Halloween! There's a twinkle in your eye that betrays you as none other than that madcap lad of other days, grown up and pretending to disguise himself in the sober habit of maturity.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their views about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 200 words—their length is limited. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied by the name of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

AMENDMENTS SHOULD BE WORDED SIMPLY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Almost every time we have an election there are some amendments and repeals to be voted on and there are some at this coming election. The amendments and repeals are generally written in such a confusing way that few outside of their authors know what they stand for. If you expect the common, ordinary educated people to vote intelligently on such propositions the issue before them ought to be made so plain that they understand what it means. I doubt that more than 50 per cent of the voting population in the state will know how to vote intelligently on those issues at this election. It seems to be the business of the legislator to make things so plain that the ordinary people have to go to them for advice on every little thing that comes up. When God made His law He gave it to us in plain language. The legislator, however, knows what He meant, providing they can hear or read. Laws and amendments are absolutely valueless except they can be understood.

Are the laws of our state for a few wise ones, or are they intended for all the people? We are not to be ruled by a few. "It shall be as it shall be." All this twisting about is only confusion. If a legislator writes a law his fellow men do not know what it means. For if it is a law, it is a law, and it does it. Paul says: "God is not the author of confusions, but of peace. For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare to the battle?"

Our boy was born in Toronto on Oct. 13, 1903, and when three months old a slight rash appeared on his cheek. When it appeared to be a water blister would form. When it broke the matter would run out, starting new blisters until his entire face, head and shoulders were a mass of scabs and you could not see a particle of clear skin. Other parts of his body were affected, but not to such an extent. We did not know what to do for him and tried about every advertised remedy without avail, indeed some of them only added to his suffering and in one particular, the use of salicylic acid, it was almost fatal in its consequences. The family doctor prescribed for him and advised us to bathe the baby in buttermilk. This did not do any good, so we took him to a hospital. He was treated as an out-patient twice a week and he got worse, if anything. We then called in another doctor and inside of a week the boy was well to all appearances, cured and the doctor said his work was done. But the very next day it broke out as bad as ever.

operator and business man, who predicts that Flat creek in the near future will be a "ghost town" in the Tanana and that the feeling among the people now in the region is decidedly skeptical.

John R. Riley, former Tanana operator, will clean up $200,000 from a claim they bought for $10,000. He says he compels them to stop sluicing, according to the statement of George La Montagni, who is here after a month on the trail. Identical quantities of gravel and debris in the Tanana are being cleaned up in order to reach an old channel. Their object has been accomplished and next season they will operate on good pay dirt. The Dunfrawan Mines company, working hydraulic placer, has ordered 100,000 plants and opened their ground this season and are preparing for extensive operations in the near future on the ground. MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Homestake Company Completes Heaviest Work on Its Hydro-Electric Power Plant in Spearfish Canyon—Will Be Operated Next Year.

Lead, S. D., Oct. 29.—The Homestake Mining company has completed the heaviest work on its hydro-electric power plant in Spearfish canyon. All by a series of holes that cost the company about $500,000, is finished, and the construction of the power plant will now be undertaken. The power plant will consist of eight separate tunnels which constitute a length of 23,800 feet, or over four miles. They have required more than a year and a half's work. The tunnels will convey the water from the creek to the plant, the water being later returned to the creek at another point. The company hopes to have the plant in operation some time next year.

Reports from the property of the Homestake Mining company in the Black Hills district indicate success. The shaft is below the 100-foot level, and the ore body cross has been cut at several points. A body of pyrites carrying 25 in gold is also in place. Nickel has been encountered. It is being developed.

At Carbonate, where the Black Hills Financial & Development corporation is working the Home Run and Iron Hill and other properties, and finding some high-grade ore, conditions are fast assuming a permanent character. The iron hill shaft has been unwatered to 250 feet and exploration is being made there. The main vein, containing gold, silver and lead, averages 10 in value and has a width of seven and a half feet. Bodies of Jasper ore have also been found on the Home Run. The $30 galena ore, while on the Home Run, the pyrophyry yields assay values of $3 per ton.

Deadwood, S. D., Oct. 29.—Details of the deal in progress for a resumption of activities on the old Lexington Hill property and adjoining ground are being tailed in letters from T. T. Cornforth of Denver, who is perfecting the plans. The men who propose to take over the ground are officials of the Southern Pacific railroad whose names are as yet unknown. They have formed a small close company for the operation of about 400 acres of ground southeast of this city. The principal property is the Lexington Hill, an old-time producing property. In addition there are the Highland Chief, Belle Eldridge and Blachoff, all in the same district. Recently J. H. Buckingham, an expert engineer from Colorado, went over the ground and reported favorably. The plan includes the remodeling of the twenty-stamp mill on the Lexington Hill ground. The ore contains hematite and a fine free gold, not readily amenable to the cyanide process, handled by concentrating tables which will be installed. The 1,500-foot tunnel is to be continued until the ore body is struck in greater dimensions.

In case that the shaft of the Lexington Hill is struck, the Homestake company, between here and Lead, is expected to be unwatered. The pumping is now in progress. This shaft is 300 feet deep and many drifts and workings are being struck. A quartz ledge has been struck and cross cut. It is eleven feet wide and holds good values in gold. It is to be followed down for the present before it is developed.

At Custer Peak John H. O'Brien is again sinking a shaft which is now

fifty-five feet deep. A quartz ledge has been struck and cross cut. It is eleven feet wide and holds good values in gold. It is to be followed down for the present before it is developed.

At Custer Peak, near town, H. H.

Klemer is opening up a new discovery on his ground, on which he has been working for several years. He found a gold ledge in a tunnel, and development is showing up well, the width being not yet determined. The vein averages about 30 in and seems promising.

DEVELOPMENT IS RETARDED

Mineral Resources of Texas Cannot Be Developed Successfully Under Existing Laws—State Land Commissioner Discusses the Situation.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 29.—The mineral land situation in Texas is discussed by J. T. Robinson, state land commissioner, in a report just submitted to Governor Campbell. He says existing laws retard greatly the development of the state's mineral resources.

"Since the enactment of the statute of 1883 relating to minerals," says Mr. Robinson, "much of the public land of the state has been sold with the reservation to the state of the minerals that may be there. There has been no adequate provision for the sale of the minerals after the sale of the land, and a purpose of the state is to secure valuable deposits of minerals, such as gold, silver, copper, coal or a well of gas, oil, such purchases could not lawfully pay for and take away an ounce or a pint, nor assume jurisdiction over it, not even for its conservation."

"It is believed the best interests of all concerned would be promoted by providing for the sale of the state of all minerals found upon public lands upon a royalty basis and that leases should be made for development purposes. Especially is this suggested for oil, coal and natural gas. More difficult to make for development the way for so handling the other minerals, both finer and baser classes, than exist in the public land, is to have an individual owner of the land, with his own, would be sufficient. The state should also be authorized to receive a bonus in addition to the royalty, by having a lease for a term of years for development purposes would be willing to pay over and above the royalty, or to have the royalty to be fixed in the lease contract, each depending upon the conditions peculiar to itself.

"There has been and is yet some activity in the Toyah oil field. This is located some sixteen miles from Toyah, in Reeves county. The Producers' Oil company has been operating there more than a year. Reports are conflicting as to results, but that some oil is found is admitted.

Oil prospects are found from this point to the Guadalupe mountains on the west and to Marathon, in Brewster county, on the south.

"The fact that much land supposed to contain mineral has been sold with reservation of the mineral to the state, and there being no adequate statute whereby the minerals in such land can be sold, produces vexation and retards the development. The proper policy to be adopted by the state in regard to this situation is a little perplexing when we consider the problem of how to handle the minerals reserved in land sold. The one clear policy would be to sell the mineral so upon the land and develop the mineral, ignoring any right of the purchaser.

"While several other methods of handling the situation might be mentioned, only two will be considered.

The first is to give the owner of the land preference for a certain time to develop the minerals under conditions that the state will not interfere with the owner's right to develop the minerals. Another is to allow the owner of the land a small percentage of the royalty received by the state in lieu of or in compensation for any damage that might accrue to the state by the sale of the land. The second method is to have the state own the mineral and develop it.

"No one should be granted a lease for mineral development except such as has the ability to properly develop the mineral, and he should be required to do a certain amount of development within a given time or forfeit his opportunity. Everything should be done through a system of publicity. Monopoly or control should be prevented."

workings on the various levels of the Hamilton shaft still holds good. Were Cactus located near a railroad this ore body would endow the mine with great value, and it is now an open question whether or not this ore can be mined and shipped at a profit. The average copper content of the ore is estimated to be about 2 per cent or slightly more. The assays taken in the course of the operations indicate 2.25 per cent as the average copper content.

The Cactus ore body is estimated to have an average thickness of 100 feet vertically. In sinking the Hamilton shaft sulphide ore was first struck 150 feet from the surface and continued downward for about 100 feet. Thus, in the present workings, the two lower levels, the fourth and the fifth, are below the ore body at the shaft stations. On the fourth level, however, the drifts pass into the ore at no great distance from the station, thus showing that the ore body apparently dips southwestward into the Pinto property. The fact that the drifts driven in an opposite direction on the third level of the Hamilton shaft passed out of the ore as they were driven eastward and entered the oxidized zone, goes further to prove that the ore body dips southwestward.

In view of the showing obtained at the Cactus property, thus far, the churn drilling to be continued there in the future will be watched with interest. Although of the thirteen holes sunk hitherto only three have found commercial material, more than that was hardly to be expected as a number of those holes were located on what was believed to be barren ground and were put down chiefly for the purpose of proving or disproving certain theories entertained as to the dip and general extent of the ore body. The holes put down in the expectation of finding ore have in most instances verified the results obtained by previous explorations.

Superior & Globe.

At the property of the Superior & Globe Copper company, diamond drilling below the 650-foot level continues to be the only form of exploration being carried on. The diamond drill hole is now 325 feet deep, thus making the total depth from the surface to the hole was penetrated 715 feet. As has been the case heretofore, the drill is still passing through diabase containing no mineral worthy of mention. Much broken ground has been encountered due to the prevalence of minor faults and the drill hole has to be cemented frequently, thus making progress somewhat slow. The hole is taking a direction which lacks only fifteen degrees of being vertical and it is estimated that the vein will be struck between 1,150 and 1,250 feet from the surface. The hole is almost following the dip of the vein to the northwest. It is hardly possible at this time to predict with any surety the outcome of the prospecting by this method, but it is not likely that any additional underground work will be undertaken until the diamond drilling throws some light on the contents of the main drift.

ORE MOVEMENT FALLING OFF

Colby and Cronin mines, on the Gogebic range. Their Kimball, Fairbanks and Crystal Falls properties, in the Crystal Falls district, are also active, as is their big Stevenson open pit, which is being developed. The mine having filled its contract for the season. Not all of the producers of ores lead from this district, however, as some new ore deposits are being opened during the winter. The Great Western is out of commission, considerable work will be done in way of surface improvements. Among other things, an addition to the engine house will be built. The plant is now machinery put in first-class condition.

Bristol's Output Curtailed.

Operations at the Bristol, Norton & Co.'s Bristol mine at Crystal Falls have recently been materially curtailed, with the result that whereas nearly 400,000 tons of ore were produced in 1909 only about 100,000 tons are the output of the present year. From all its properties on the Menominee range, the company is sending out this season somewhat more than 500,000 tons. Next the Bristol is the largest shipper is the Berkshire, at Stambaugh, with 100,000 tons. The Berkshire property at Commonwealth will close the season with a record of 30,000 tons, and the Chatham, at Stambaugh, will add 60,000 tons to the total. The Buckeye will add some 25,000 tons, 25,000 tons of ore. The deposit at this property appears to be a large one, but it is of low grade. The Buckeye at present is employing 150 men. Ogilvie, Norton & Co.'s Ogilvie mine, at Marquette range property, is about to suspend operations, but this is not in part an open pit, operated on the mill, but a shaft, and the shaft is being worked for the season will approximate 60,000 tons. AT THE THEATERS

THE COMING WEEK AT DULUTH THEATERS

LYCEUM—Monday, "Alma Wo Wahnst Du." Thursday, The Russian Dancers.
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Vaudeville.
ORPHEUM and LYRIC—Motion pictures.

There is a full in affairs theatrical in Duluth.

Two passably good musical plays were presented at the Lyceum last week, and next week the German musical farce, "Alma Wo Wahnst Du," will be seen Monday evening, and the famous Russian dancers, Mordkin and Pavlova, Thursday. This latter promises to be one of the most notable events of the entire season in Duluth.

The next big dramatic attraction which will be seen here will be "The Nigger," which opens a week from tomorrow. "The Nigger" is well known by reputation here, having been the big feature of the New Theater last winter in New York. Guy Bates Post and Florence Rockwell will be seen in the cast, and it should be one of the best things the Shuberts have yet sent to the city.

There is no doubt of the fact that the Shuberts have the big attractions this season. The difficulty to date has been with the booking arrangements. A booking system cannot be built up in a week or a month, and the booking system was in a hopeless muddle a month ago. Order is gradually being evolved out of the chaos, and some big attractions in the dramatic line are due to arrive in Duluth during December and January.

The biggest event of the season in Orpheum circles will be the visit of Annette Kolleremann, next month. This is the costliest act on the Orpheum circuit, and the fact that it is playing Duluth is proof that this city is not being slighted by the circuit, because the fact that it is one of the smallest of the cities in which Orpheum theaters are located.

Says Winthrop Chamberlain in the Minneapolis Journal, agent the death of William Vaughn Moody:

"The death of William Vaughn Moody, after more than a year's struggle against an unrelenting foe, is potentially a greater loss to the American drama than the sudden taking off of Clyde Fitch. For Moody's play-building labors had but barely begun, while many doubted that Fitch, by the very prodigiousness of his output, had written himself out. In the light of the fact that 'The City' was the biggest and best thing Fitch had done, as it was the last, this may be deemed.

"But, at any rate, Fitch was an artist while Moody was an artisan. Fitch had the deft touch, the nice use of his tools that marks the good workman. He was a master technician of the difficult craft of play-building. The mere writing of the lines, was the least of his work. He superintended every production until the curtain went up. He picked out his players. He made them do things his way. He selected the properties and devised the effects. And from his play factory he turned out a seemingly endless series of productions, all more or less successful, all pouring royalties into his bank account—all ephemeral. What one of Fitch's plays will live, thank you?"

AT THE LYCEUM

"Alma Wo Wahnst Du?" ("Alma, Where Do You Live?") the opera from the French of Paul Hervey, adapted for the American stage by Adolf Philipp, the author of "The Corner Grocer," will be presented for the first time in this city at the Lyceum for one night only on Monday Oct. 31. Its music is by Jean Briquet and Adolf Philipp, and it includes the famous "Alma Wo Wahnst Du" waltz. This waltz has a haunting melody, and it is so simple it clings to one without any desire to lose it. It is being sung, whistled, hummed and played everywhere in New York. There are other songs in the little opera that take one captive, notably "The Black Cat," and "Weiber, Weiber" ("Women, Women"). The

A talented and beautiful young German singing comedienne will be seen here for the first time as Alma Dufaur, namely Miss Cora Morena, who has achieved success in Germany and in New York. In her support will found a number of comedians and capable singers.

Winthrop Ames, a director of the New Theater, is a firm believer in suggestion from the stage. Louis James, the tragedian, whose death occurred last season, frequently spoke of successful experiments he had made along this line, and Richard Mansfield, who played many parts with the same inflection of the same familiar mannerisms of the hands, was able, largely through the power of suggestion, as he believed, to compel his audiences to see each individual characterization with entirely different eyes.

A remarkable instance of the power of suggestion was furnished by Guy Bates Post, in his characterization of Philip Morrow in "The Nigger." A well known man, who was recently discussing Mr. Post's work in "The Nigger," remarked:

"I saw the play when it was presented by the New Theater company, last season, and Guy Bates Post's portrayal of the governor had an effect upon me that was positively uncanny. I don't know whether there was an actual change in the actor's work, or whether it was merely the power of suggestion, but from the moment Philip Morrow learned through Noyes, the duetist, that he had black blood in his veins, he began in my eyes, to visibly change to a negro, and before the final curtain fell I could have sworn that he was a black man."

More than any theatrical production of the last generation, particularly in the comic opera classification, is "The Chocolate Soldier" full of the unusual. Although one of the largest choruses is necessary, it appears for brief intervals only four times, and the first ten minutes after the rising of the curtain the opera plunges immediately into the story in a trio of the three principal women characters. In one scene there is a household of the family members who comprise the principals, seated around a table, which, far from lacking dramatic interest, is full of surprises. There is the entrance of the chocolate soldier, though she is already prepared for the night. It has been a long time since the action of the "Chocolate Soldier" is

AT THE ORPHEUM

A troupe of monkeys will feature next week's bill at the Orpheum theater.

This is the first big animal act that has been presented at the Orpheum circuit, but it is claimed to be one of the best of the kind. The animal act that has been seen in "A Night in a Monkey Music Hall" is the name of the act, and the animal is an entire vaudeville performer of their own, condensed to about half the size of the human performer. The leader of the act, which, by the way, is one of the best of the kind, is a monkey in the troupe—performers, monkey ushers and monkey waiters. Through their performance, the monkeys go through a series of acts, without any coaching from anybody, although their trainer and owner, Miss Maudie, stands by in the wings. They do not need any cues and only occasionally look at the footlights. The act is a unique one of the best of the kind. The Orpheum circuit.

What is ordinarily a feature act, but what is compelled to give way next week to the animal act, is Harlan Knight's "The Chalk Line." "The Chalk Line" is a little comedy drama that has become a vaudeville classic and is called "The Way Down East" of vaudeville. It is presented by Harlan Knight and his company of players. The scene of the story is in a little country town in Maine. The postmaster and the village storekeeper are compelled to occupy the same building, but they are sworn enemies. Down the center of the store they have drawn a chalk line, and each man is supposed to keep on his own side of the line. The amusing situations which would result can be easily imagined. The old men together, and causes them to wipe out the chalk line and become firm friends. The story is well told, judging from the criticisms heard in other cities.

Mr. Knight is himself a native of Maine, and should be well fitted to portray the characters of a small New England town, having been born in one of them and educated in a country schoolhouse.

What is expected to prove one of the big hits of next week's bill, is the

AT THE BIJOU

The Bijou management announces the engagement of Rosa Naylor and her $10,000 troupe of trained birds. The act has just returned from a three years' tour. Europe, embracing every country and important city on the continent, playing a five months engagement in the city of Paris alone. These birds have been taught to accomplish many new and strange tricks. The stage picture is a sight beautiful to behold, displaying a troupe of birds, dancing, birds that ride in and drive little carriages, birds that simulate a "house," birds that fly at the word of command over the audience and then back to Miss Naylor's hand and birds that do a host of other startling things about and perched on gold perches make a beautiful picture. Miss Naylor wears most beautiful and expensive gowns, having a complete change of costume for each performance. Miss Naylor is assisted by two men in evening dress and the act as a whole is claimed to be several steps beyond any novelty feature shown in Duluth for a long time.

One of vaudeville's brilliant and refreshing teams are McDonald and Huntington. Their duty has to plot to follow, but contains a considerable amount of comedy and melody. Miss McDonald possesses a remarkably sweet voice and her knowledge of operatic selections is attested by her repertoire which contains several difficult numbers that can be only interpreted by a cultured vocalist. Mr. Huntington is a clever singing comedian and has an unusually strong tenor voice, and renders several catchy selections in addition to his characterizations. Direct from a triumphant European sufficient to closely hold the attention of an audience even without the wonderful music of Oscar Straus, and have any theatergoer is there that does not speak of the unexpectedness of incident in this brilliant opera.

"The Inferior Sex," the jolly nautical comedy from the pen of Frank Statton, in which Miss Maxine Elliott sailed to success during a long run at Daly's theater in New York last season, will be the vehicle of the beautiful actress when she goes on tour this fall, and in which she will appear at the Orpheum theater. "The Inferior Sex" is generally considered to be the best vehicle Miss Elliott has had since she appeared in Clyde Fitch's comedy, "Her Own Way."

At the Bijou should afford its patrons excellent entertainment.

Two of Edison's newest and best comedy films will conclude the bill. Matinees are given daily at 2:45, and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved one week in advance. A special school children's matinee is given every Saturday at 2:30, when all scholars under 14 years of age are admitted for 5 cents.

BASEBALL FILM AT THE ORPHEUM

World's Series Will Be Shown at Moving Picture House.

A feature of the Orpheum moving picture bill next week is the world's championship baseball series. The films will show the exciting plays of the famous series which was won by the Athletics. "The Foreman" is an interesting film showing western ranch life. The foreman suspected of theft and held a prisoner by the sheriff, his escape and the chase by the posse, his relief by the ranchman's daughter and the final extermination of the foreman when the guilty persons are captured make a thrilling and interesting film. "The House of Seven Gables" is an interesting and dramatic film. Miss Maddox will sing "I Love You for the Sake of Auld Lang Syne."

At the Lyric an excellent bill will be given. "The House of Seven Gables" is a dramatic film and "Davy Jones' Domestic Troubles" is comedy in which Davy Jones, the sea, is mourned as dead, has exciting adventures and finally turns up to the surprise of his friends.

Some comedy will be furnished by Hilda Thomas and Lou Hall who have an amusing little sketch called "The Substitute." It is claimed to be a bit of a hit and very favorably received in Minneapolis, where it appeared last week.

There has not been a cycling act on the Orpheum bill since Valentine and Dooley were here several weeks ago. The act is claimed to be one of the best of the kind. The Orpheum circuit.

What is ordinarily a feature act, but what is compelled to give way next week to the animal act, is Harlan Knight's "The Chalk Line."

IN VAUDEVILLE

Walter Kelly, the Virginia Judge, seen on the Orpheum circuit last season, is in Australia.

Seymour Hicks is to succeed Mme. Sarah Bernhard at the Coliseum, London, in a scene from "Richard III" with 150 people on the stage at one time. She will present an act from "Leah the Forsaken."

Ever Tanganyika, the tireless comedienne, is shortly to try something widely different from her present line. She will present an act from "Leah the Forsaken."

Bessie de Voe has decided to try vaudeville again. The dancer was with one of "The Three Twins" companies for a while. She will be supported by four dancing boys.

Alfred Lloyd soon starts upon the tour which will eventually bring her to the Duluth Orpheum. The merry English singer has an entirely new series of songs.

There is a colored act with 100 people around New York, awaiting the call of vaudeville. It is called "The Sengambian Carnival," led by Henry Troy. The probable price of the number for vaudeville would be between $2,000 and $2,500 weekly.

It is understood that Elizabeth M. Murray has been placed under contract to appear at the Cort theater, Chicago, as the star of a production, following the termination of her engagement with "Alma, Sherry" at the Amsterdam New York.

Gaby Deslys will not be seen in New York in the near future or for some time to come, that is unless she comes to earth in the matter of money. The Maritelli office offered Gaby engagements here but the French girl who put a kingdom on the blink, kept up her reputation as a non-piker when it came to salary. Gaby thought her services were worth $600 a day with only two matinees a week. Martin Beck of the Orpheum circuit turned the act down as immoral. Besides this, round trip tickets for five were demanded. She would not leave Paris until $10,000 had been deposited as security for her salary.

Another effort to come back to vaudeville will be made by Maudie Palmer. She has written "Circus." He says it will return Miss Palmer to the heights she once attained and held upon the stage. The Dan Casey company will have a sketch in rehearsal within a few days.

BILL FOR WEEK OPENING WITH SUNDAY MATINEE, OCT. 30

MONKEY MUSIC HALL The full name of this act is "A Night in a Monkey Music Hall." The monkeys present a complete vaudeville bill themselves. It is the most remarkable trained animal act yet seen in Duluth.

THE CHALK LINE "The Chalk Line" is the "Way Down East" of vaudeville drama. If you miss it, you miss one of the little gems of the "tabloid drama." Harlan Knight is great as "The Rube From Maine."

STEPP MEHLINGER AND KING These Three Boys are clever. These Three Boys are one of the clean-cut musical acts that the Orpheum circuit is noted for.

JOSEPH CALLAHAN Joseph Callahan has been a famous actor for thirty years. He has some Impersonations of Famous Men that are worth the admission price themselves.

THOMAS AND HALL These Two Clever People have a little Comedy sketch called "THE SUBSTITUTE."

PALFREY & BARTON Did you ever see a man Turn a Summer suit into a Table White Kidney? Bicycle. Palfrey does it, and the feat is typical of this clever trick bicycle act.

THE HAMLINS Nearly every dancer has used at some time the hollow heel dancing shoe. The Hammins have used it, and they invented a lot of other things in the dancing line that have been copied. But they still have some original features that haven't been copied yet.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Margaret Mayo, the author of William A. Brady's irresistibly amusing comedy, "Baby Mine," is a quiet, unassuming little woman, who keeps out of the public gaze as much as possible, and finds her greatest diversion in persistent literary work. "Baby Mine" continues to be one of the most notable Broadway successes of recent years. This execrably funny farce, founded on the penchant of women to deceive their husbands in order to retain their love, will shortly be produced in London under the direction of William A. Brady, Ltd.

William A. Brady is one of the few New York managers who keep in personal touch with their theatrical enterprises while on tour. As a result of his observations, Brady says he is convinced that the public is prepared to patronize and ensure success for stage offerings, both musical and dramatic, so long as they are really meritorious. Every season, Mr. Brady says, is a bad season for bad plays.

"The Jolly Bachelors," the big Lew Fields' musical spectacle, which picked up the Broadway theater nearly all of last winter, is duplicating on tour the remarkable success achieved by its predecessor at that playhouse—"The Midnight Sons." Heading the company is that most jovial and hilarious of comedians, Stella Mayhew. Others in the cast include Lew Fields, the dainty and demure English singer, who was popular in the widely known "The Jolly Bachelors," and Roy Atwell, Nat Florida, Harold Crane, Bill Taylor, Norman Sharp, Florence Fox and Maudie. The production is carried intact exactly as shown at the Broadway theater.

The comical humor and pathos of "The Comedy" theater play by Robert H. Davis, which is being presented at the Comedy theater, under the management of the Messrs. Shubert, with John Westley at the head of the cast, has captivated New York. Davis is telling a straightforward story in an unassuming and entirely convincing manner, has a strain of sentimentality in its appeal. The story of a family which does not cast out the erring daughter, but, instead, protects her, brings her home, and, in addition to Mr. Westley, the cast includes Julie Herderson, Bert Stan and Thomas Meighan and Zyllian Shanon.

Louis Mann's success in "The Cheater," which ran for many weeks at the Lyric theater, New York, has not made William A. Brady his manager, oblivious to the fact that a large section of the United States has not yet seen Mr. Mann's earlier success, "The Cheater," which was produced by Jules Eckert Goodman and a Western and Southern tour. The latter play, Mr. Mann in the leading role, has been arranged. Later "The Cheater" will be staged, and a new play, "The Dreamer," also by Mr. Goodman, will be presented.

"The Nigger," Edward Sheldon's remarkable success in "The Nigger," which was one of last season's greatest successes at the New York, has not only aroused universal interest in the New York, but has proved to be one of the greatest financial successes of the year. The title of "The Nigger" has been proved a magnet, and almost everywhere that the play has been presented, it has taken the capacity of the theater. "The Nigger" is the story of a young Southern governor, who, in the midst of his political triumph, loses social position and his sweetheart by the discovery that he has negro blood in his veins. The play is full of tense and thrilling dramatic situations.

The most dramatic moment in "Mother's Name" is offering, is when the mother's name is noted for $10,000, and is forever. This is the climax of the play, and furnishes one of the most beautiful and effective stage pictures ever seen upon the stage.

Edward Sheldon, the author of "Salvation Bell," so successfully played by Mrs. Plais, "The Nigger," which is being presented by the Messrs. Shubert, and "The Nigger," which is being presented by the Messrs. Shubert, and "The Nigger," which is being presented by the Messrs. Shubert.

Marc Klaw has been in the Northwest a month. In that time he has secured for Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger, theaters in Portland, Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver and Butte. Before he returns East he will also have obtained leases in Tacoma and Spokane, completing the new Northwest circuit. Klaw & Erlanger, which will be ready and open for business by the opening of the next season. On his return Mr. Klaw will make a trip to Texas and Oklahoma to acquire theaters in cities where Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger are not represented at present.

Arlene Genee will make her farewell appearance in New York at New York theater in October, under the management of Klaw & Erlanger. In a new musical play, "The Bachelor Belles," by Harry B. Smith, with music by Raymond Hubbell. The production has been staged by Julian Mitchell. Genee will appear in a pantomime dance, "The Apprentice," with special music composed by E. Cutler, K. C. of London. Her second dance is "The Roses and Butterflies" ballet. Twelve English dancers assist her in this number. The music used is Gounod's "Philemon and Baucis," a variation by De Busse and a Moszkowski waltz.

The production is an unusually elaborate one with a pretty chorus. Among the principals are Frank Lawlor, Annie Stone, Lawrence Wheat, Grace Pitt, John Parks, Josie Sadler, Jack Raffael, Alice Hageman, E. Stanton Heck, Blanche West, Florence Walton and Mae Murray.

The first performance of Nat C. Goodwin's new play, "The Captain," by George Broadhurst and T. Daxey, under the management of Klaw & Erlanger, was given in Indianapolis. The scenes of the play are laid in Manila. Mr. Goodwin impersonates Jefferson Lovimer, a clubman and Broadwayite, who has held a commission in the national guard.

Fred Terry and Julia Neilson are appearing at the Knickerbocker theater, New York, in "The Scarlet Imp." The play is by Baroness Orczy and Montague Barrow, founded on Baroness Orczy's novel of the same title. While in America Mr. Terry and Miss Neilson will also appear in "The Story of Navarre." Only a short season has been planned. Mr. Terry will bring with him his own company and the English production.

Gertrude Coghlan, who is still playing Beth Elliott, the heroine of James Forbes' comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," is devoting her spare time to collecting letters and manuscripts of her father, the late Charles Coghlan. Among them she has discovered three plays that were written immediately prior to his death. It is her intention to present them in New York next spring, in a series of matinee performances.

Rose Stahl, who before long will discard her chorus girl toga to clothe herself with those of a staid, businesslike store manager, was once called upon in her "stock" days to assume a new part on very quick notice. It seems that this company had just changed management, and a newcomer being unacquainted with stock methods, expressed some doubts as to Miss Stahl's ability to get up in the part. The stage director was a rather testy old fellow, and became very irritable. When approached the third or fourth time by the new manager on the subject, he rather vaguely said: "What? You mean, 'Well, I will tell you,' said the director. 'She could get up in thirty minutes, and even be ready the next day to learn two more lines, and go back with the company, and call on her dressmaker to fit her for next week's gown.'"

Byron Ongley, the author of "Amateur Night," who is now in London, is trying out, is rather a versatile genius. On emergency occasions he will play a part, do the advance work for a show, write a play, and go back with the company, and count up, in fact, he is at home in every branch of the profession—a rather versatile genius—what?

Maria Dresler in "The Night-mare" at the Herald Square theater, under the management of Lew Fields, has been a source of much amusement for thousands of players every week. Little, the household name in a small town, who dreamed of wonderful riches in New York, is a character of such dimensions, and is played by Miss Dresler. She is on the stage almost without interruption during the entire performance, and the audience is in a continual uproar of laughter. The production calls for many different scenes, and every episode of the nightmare is staged most lavishly.

The tour of John Mason in "The Witching Hour" is eminently successful out in the "Far West." Most of the New York theaters are now playing this play. The tour is made up of a number of houses. Butte, Helena and Great Falls turned people away. The company will travel California to San Diego, back across the mountains to Denver and thence to the Pacific coast, where it will be played by John Cort, then South to Texas. The business in Seattle was extremely good, and in view of the fact that "The Witching Hour" had a run of three weeks last season, it is worthy of note.

H. H. Frazee and G. W. Lederer, comprise the membership of the newest New York theatrical producing firm. The first named member of the duo has long been an important factor in musical comedy productions in the Middle West. The Lederer of the partnership is the same George Washington Lederer, who controlled the destinies of the New York Casino when that playhouse won its first fame as the home of smart musical pieces of native writers, this in the days of John May and other Lederer discoveries. "Madame Sherry," a new musical production now scoring sensational success at the New Amsterdam theater, New York, is another of new firm's productions.

Gustav Kerker, who wrote the score "The Belle of New York," the first American musical production to succeed in London, where it ran for two years, has just won new acclaim in Vienna with a score he furnished for "Snowdrops," a new comic opera successfully tried out there last week. Kerker was one of the "finds" of George W. Lederer, who staged "The Belle of New York," and took it to London.

"Madame Sherry" is the musical comedy, race of New York this season. Stealing into the metropolis quietly last August, at the New Amsterdam theater, the production scored sensationally and is attracting overflow audiences to every performance. The newspaper praise elicited by the piece is quite as sensational as the production's box-office success. All signs say the New York run will last at least a year.

Richard Carle has pretty little Edna Wallace Hopper in his company this season. The elongated funster of him, his legs, dandy voice and droll manner is touring this season in "Jumping Jupiter," a new musical comedy, written by himself and Sydney Rosenfeld. The piece recently ended a half year's run at the Cort theater. Carle, Frazee and Lederer, producers of the musical success "Madame Sherry," now current at the New Amsterdam theater, New York, and this season directing the Carle tour.

"The Happiest Night of His Life" is the title of the new musical play in which the former star of "The Talk of the Town," Victor Moore, is to appear shortly under the management of Frazee and Lederer, owners with A. H. Woods, of "Madame Sherry," and the managers this season of "Madame Sherry." Carle in his new play, "Jumping Jupiter." The new Moore medium is being played by the comedy actor, Victor Moore, who is playing "Jumping Jupiter" with music by Albert von Tilzer. Its premiere is slated for Atlantic City in November. The new piece will be the attraction at the Colonial theater, commencing Jan. 1.

Eugene Ormande, for the past two seasons leading man for Miss Margaret Anglin, during which period he had an opportunity to play the part of Cron in "Sophisticated Anticope," besides playing the principal male role in "Awakening of Helena Ritchie," has been engaged by Liebler & Co. to play the role of Cron in "The Talk of the Town," when it is produced in New York. When All Has Been Said," George Woodward, who created the role of Archdeacon Wadley in "The Christian," will also have a part in this play. Emily Stevens will have the only female part in the play and Charles Baisar, late of the New Theater company, will be prominently cast. The part of a 7-year-old boy, really the most important in the play, is yet to be filled.

Miss Rosalind Coghlan has been engaged by Liebler & Co. for the part of Georgiana in "Going to Poland," the new May Irwin comedy, by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson. This completes the cast, which now includes, as May Irwin's support, George Wood, Frank Brady, John Daily Murphy, John Junior, T. Challice, Charles A. Gay, Albert Roccardi, Raymond Watson, Edward Liebert, Mary K. Taylor and Mary V. Hall. The performance will be given Monday night. After two weeks of getting together, "Going to Poland" will come into New York.

The new Sam S. Shubert theater, Broadway and Monroe street, Brooklyn, was opened by Eddie Foy and Emma Carus in "Up and Down Broadway," being the latest addition to the chain of theaters which is fast being established by the Messrs. Shubert from coast to coast. The new house has a capacity of 1,500, being one of the largest in the city of churches. The general color scheme is old rose and gold. The theater was built at an estimated cost of $500,000. It was personally managed by J. J. Shubert. The opening of this theater makes the sixteenth first-class house operated by the Shubert Bros. in Greater New York. It is also the first playhouse in New York to bear the name of their deceased brother, Sam S. Shubert.

CLEARING THE STREETS OF PANHANDLERS

Why the Police Allow Beggars to Flourish—Annoyance Caused By Them Works Harm to a City—Clever Schemes of Some Impostors.

By JAMES FORBES,

Secretary of the National Society for the Prevention of Mendicancy.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

"One of the many beggars that now make the public thoroughfares unpleasant for honest men was arrested on Tuesday and arraigned in court, where he displayed $64, which he had collected in two days appealing to the passerby. Whether he observed the eight-hour day or not, it is not known, but his income amounted to an average of $1.50 an hour for the whole day. The magistrate collected from him $5 or considerably less than 10 per cent of his takings, and the balance was duly turned into the city treasury as its share of his loot."

A news item from this city may be noticed from time to time in the papers of almost any large city. In most places what amounts to a license fee for beggars is levied in connection with small fines. This particular incident happened in New York. Sometimes unpleasant insinuations are made. "Of course nobody is so stupid as to unsophisticated as to believe that these parasites conduct their operations without official connivance, and nobody is so inexperienced as to think that the essential blindness and inaction of the police are the results of more laziness or inattention. The privilege of begging in the streets of a rich and careless city is worth money, and there is no doubt that money is paid for it," said the New York Sun not very long ago.

Is begging a nuisance that must be tolerated? Let those who are so foolishly give it their wish, some may say. Others moved by pity ask, "How are the beggars to be helped if they are forbidden to beg?" Those who need help should be aided by organized public charity, private charity. Usually those who beg know that their cases would not be considered worthy. Generally they get from the careless public much more than they need. Legitimately ask for on the ground of charity. Many beggars are impostors, some outright pickpockets and thieves.

A city whose streets are over-run by beggars suffers commercially. Considerers come to believe that it is not prospering, that it is too careless and indolgent. Visitors do not like to shop in places where they are unpleasantly accosted. The Italian government found that the beggars in such cities as Naples, which was notorious for this evil, had a marked deteriorating effect upon the volume of tourist traffic. So the government for commercial reasons has for years been doing its utmost to suppress the practice throughout the kingdom.

Vigorous action in each community would do much to stop mendicancy. But the beggar is not stationary. When one city becomes too strict for his comfort, he moves to another. Concerted effort is the only way to cope with him. Charity officials in different cities have been exchanging information to protect their funds, and prevent the abuse of free transportation.

Though the officials of charitable societies incidentally learn much about beggars these quick-witted fellows ordinarily steer as far as possible from the regular channels for relief. But is it not for the police to keep the streets free of beggars and impostors? They do much to check begging, but they tend to devote most of their attention to more aggressive evils and allow mendicancy to flourish most of the time.

The police have some excuse for falling to arrest beggars. Often when they do apprehend a flagrant impostor, the magistrate allows him to go on probation as an "object of pity."

A common practice is to rely upon the sympathy caused by a real or apparent deformity. In one great city a notorious beggar commonly known as "Shivers" gained a comfortable livelihood by simulating epilepsy. Selecting a busy thoroughfare at an appropriate time he was taken with a severe epileptic seizure. After having secured a generous reward, the impostor strolled away. Owing to the activity of a squad of mendicancy police in plain clothes, "Shivers" became a junkman. When the special squad was abolished, he resumed his old trick, the effect of which is heightened by the fact that his nose has been partly eaten away by a disease, which also destroyed his palate making his voice indistinct. "Shivers" discharged him.

The National Association for the Prevention of Mendicancy, a charitable imposture with headquarters at 26 East Twenty-second street, New York, maintains a bureau of identification and information and has over 9,000 photographs and finger print records supplied from all parts of the country of all known impostors. It disseminates expert information concerning all types of impostors and the standard methods by which they are detected.

When charitable societies and police officials throughout the country unite to make the records of the central bureau more complete and further call upon it more often for information, instances of mistaking impostors for that just mentioned, will become more rare. Many an impostor is set free merely because his past record is not known.

Another instance will illustrate this fact. In the summer of 1904, a professional mendicant known as "Chi Slim" was arrested at Fourteenth street and Broadway in New York city. He was found walking backwards through the crowd. His head thrown back, lolled from side to side in a horrible fashion. His feet were twisted, as was his back. He managed to hold his hat in one hand and supported himself on cane in the other. At the police station the sergeant shipped him to Bellevue hospital. The president of the hospital protested at the incarceration of one who was a victim of locomotor ataxia and the inmates discharged him. A week or two later "Slim" was gathered in up in Harlem, but meanwhile he had been investigated by the magistrate was not to be imposed upon. Later at police headquarters he gave exhibition of his "horrible" condition, which was due to some knock of double jointedness.

The only adequate way to deal with mendicancy is by special police in plain clothes. In New York from time to time such squads have been maintained. In fact, to reduce the number of men on special detail, the members have been resigned to duty as ordinary patrolmen. In each case after the abolition of the mendicancy police, the streets became crowded with beggars who are only restrained

GOPHER WILL BE NEW SHIP

Installation of New Engines Will Complete Rebuilding of Vessel.

Canada Will Not Allow Additional Armed Vessels on Lakes.

Officers and members of the Minnesota Naval Militia are delighted with the action of the department at Washington in ordering the installation of new engines in the Gopher and they will look forward expectantly to spring when the ship will be delivered with the new equipment.

The new engines will be fore and aft compound engines of the latest type, and besides giving the Gopher better maneuvering efficiency, they will increase the speed of the ship about one mile an hour, or to about twelve miles in all.

The old engines, which are said to have been the first fore and aft compound engines ever built, have done their work well for years, but they were not as reliable as the last two or three cruises as they might have been and Commander Eaton was insistent in his requests that they be replaced by more modern machinery.

With the installation of the new boilers last year, the Gopher's speed and efficiency were increased to some extent and the ship more than made good in the fleet maneuvers on the last cruise. It will be far different from the battered stern, which was turned over to the Minnesota militia, at New Orleans six years ago.

With new engines and the improvements already made the Gopher will be as good as a new ship. It is well, perhaps, for Canada shows a disposition to enforce the treaty agreement, while the United States has been allowed to violate in assembling the Great Lakes fleet of training ships. A move of the department recently to give the Cleveland naval militia a new ship to replace the converted yacht, Dorothea, was blocked by the Canadian authorities and it is doubtful if any more ships will be allowed to take stations on the Great Lakes.

NEW PASSENGER DIVISION HEADS

Growth of Western Business Necessitates Canadian Pacific Changes.

Winnipeg, Oct. 28.—Several important changes are announced on the Canadian Pacific railroad upon the promotion of C. E. E. Usher to become passenger traffic manager.

It is announced also that passenger business for the West has become so important it will be divided into two sections, one from Lake Superior west to Revelstoke, B. C., and the other from Revelstoke, B. C., to Vancouver, including the passenger business on the Pacific coast.

C. E. Macpherson, a veteran of the Canadian Pacific railway passenger service, who has been general passenger agent at Winnipeg, is promoted to succeed Usher, assistant general passenger traffic manager for the Western lines at Winnipeg. The office of general passenger agent for the Western lines has been abolished and the system divided.

C. B. Foster, who started in the service at St. Paul and was for years district passenger agent at Toronto, and later assistant general passenger agent at Vancouver, will have charge of the district from Lake Superior to Vancouver, and for the Pacific coast. The changes go into effect immediately.

GARRULOUS GIRLS

To Be Suppressed in Indianapolis Theater By "Hatpin" Alderman.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—An ordinance to suppress giggling, gushing and garrulous girls, and also young men who make themselves generally obnoxious to other spectators at theaters, will be introduced in the city council by Councilman George C. Rubens.

His evening was spoiled in such a manner one night, and he says "there ought to be a heavy fine for such frequent displays of bad breeding."

Councilman Rubens is the author of the hatpin ordinance now in force in this city.

The company has been successfully engaged in the pig iron industry since 1904, after having failed several times previous to that. In 1904 Capt. A. B. Bobby and His Kite Adventure.

HALLOWE'EN.

A black and white illustration of a boy in a checkered cap and jacket peeking over a wooden fence. On the roof of a house in the background, a man is crouching and looking down at the boy. A street lamp is visible on the roof.

And in front the Paris Milliner

"Try our boots, they're sure to fit you,"
"In shirts we take the lead."

Robert approached a small fishing skiff and asked of a rough old former seaman the way to his home, giving the address. "Want, land, for a long time you've been here, but I'm inclined you know I'll take you over. I'm going in that direction, anyway, so would be glad of your company."

Robert's heart fluttered. He looked with admiring eyes at the "little ship" and beheld a fine launch. "Oh, if I don't be troubling you, sir," he said, "I'd just love to go along with you."

After another ten minutes Robert was aboard the "little ship," whose name was "Francie Queen," and was going off across the lake like the wind. The old captain out on the lake shore, my father was leaning into the kite. The old man was laughing and telling the boys, invited them to have a ride on the "watery-ware." And after the ride was over the boys asked him to dine with them, which he very gladly did, and never was a brighter or more happy evening spent in the King's home than was spent that evening with the ex-seaman and present captain of the "Trade Wagon," the guest of the house. And, although, Robert was never again lost in Chicago—although he went about doing much "exploring"—he often made a trip to the shanty of the captain, and there spent many a pleasant hour listening to the old man's merry talk.

Billy looked interested; so did George. "Wonder if there really are witches," asked the latter. "Papa says it's all a hoax about witches and fairies and such things."

Billy shook his head. "I don't know," he said slowly, "but I believe there are witches and a Sister and I are going to start up all night to watch for the Halloween witch riding her broomstick across the western sky. They say she comes just at grey dawn."

"Maybe," said George. "Say, I'll a mamma if I may stay all night with you. Billy, and if she will permit me to do so, I'll sit up with you and Bess a

"May we stay out a long, long time?"

"Mamma?"

Every day I always asked my mother for privileges. Like most children, he knew that the mother was less liable to refuse than was the father, though both were very indulgent with their children.

"Till half-past eight, dearie," said Mr. Baker. "After that the streets become filled with such a rowdy, lawless crowd of half-grown boys, and the police I kept busy trying to maintain order. As I don't want my children to be classed with those whose behavior the police have to watch and rebuke, I am a firm friend."

"But soon as supper was over Bill, George and Bessie were off down the DEATH VALLEY.

DEATH Valley contains the greatest borax quarry in the world. 2 ledges and series of ledges contain great quantities of borate quartz. It is a body of ore measuring 10 feet in width to 5,000 feet in depth. It pitches into the mountain range at an angle of 35 degrees. Thousands of tons of borax are contained in the mine, but the exact amount cannot be estimated, even by experts.

He approached a small, shuffling man in a dark suit and a white cravat, who was coming toward him. The man was the woman the way to his home, giving the address. "Waal, and, yer a long place from here, he said, "if yer goin' in there, yer better get a good horse. I'll take yer over. I'm goin' in that direction, anyway, so would give yer a lift."

Robert's heart fluttered. He looked with admiring eyes at the little man, who said, "Oh, if I won't be troubling you, sir," he said, "I'd just love to go along."

After ten minutes Robert was aboard the "little ship," whose name was the "Little Captain," and who was a little like the man. The old captain looked like he had. The old captain out on the lake shore, and coming into port, as he termed it, and seeing the boys, invited them to come aboard. And, although Robert was never again lost in Chicago—although he was never again a "press-gangler"—he often made a trip to the shanty of the captain, there to see the man, and listening to the old man's merry talk.

"Bad boys and—and—witches abroad!" Billy looked interested. "What are witches?" "Witches, really are witches," said the latter. "Papa says it's all a hoax about witches and fairies and such."

Billy shook his head. "I don't know," he said slowly, "but I believe there are witches." "Surely," said the old man, "all night to watch for the Halloween witches riding her broomstick across the sky."

"Yes, yes," said Billy. "They are witches just at grey dawn."

"Maybe," said George. "Say, I'll bet if I make a wish, I'll get a witch."

"If you make a wish, it will permit me to do it," said the old man. "If you wish, I'll set it up with you and Bess and

THE "OTHER BROTHER" OF SOME FAMOUS MEN

Creighton Foraker, Brother of Ohio's Fighting Ex-Senator, is a Big Man and the "Bad Man's" Foe Down in the Southwest Country—The Only Living Custer Brother is a Contented Michigan Farmer—Phil Sheridan's Brother is a Brigadier-General, Retired—The Octogenarian Brother of Henry Gassaway Davis Was a Pioneer Railroad Man in America—The Brothers of John Sharp Williams, William Jennings Bryan, Vice-President Sherman, "Uncle Joe" Cannon, Richard B. Olney, and Others.

Written for The Herald by E. J. EDWARDS ("Holland")

(Copyright, 1910, by E. J. Edwards)

Now and then it happens that two brothers climb the ladder of fame hand in hand. An instance of this dual brotherly prosperity is furnished by the Stephensons, one of whom, Isaac, still survives and is United States senator from Wisconsin. This keen-witted and thrifty pair came over from New Brunswick in early life and took root on American soil with a grip. They landed them about as near the top as a foreign-born citizen may go. They settled on opposite sides of the Mississippi river, Isaac in Wisconsin and Samuel in Michigan, and proceeded to develop the virgin natural resources of the region with an energy and an intelligence that were productive of mighty results. When he died, Samuel was the richest man in his state, the political autocrat of his party and in direct line for the United States senate, to which his multi-millionaire brother Isaac was sent in 1907.

The Taylor brothers of Tennessee—Nob and Alf—once rival candidates for gubernatorial honors, stepped cheerily side by side in the march to distinction until the latter was distanced by the superior spellbinding ability of Calcutt Bob, so christened on account of his success in getting votes by dint of his violin playing, the man who "daddled" himself into the governor's chair, then into the national senate, and is once more a candidate for chief executive of his state. The Rodgers brothers—Frederick and John Augustus—have moved in admirable unison throughout their long and history-building service, both of them becoming rear-admirals in the American navy, Frederick, present commandant of the navy yard at Puget sound.

This divided brotherly preeminence is exceptional—one celebrity in a household seems to be the rule, and the genius or opportunity or whatever it may be that lifts one of the brood is not shared by the others; and it is even possible that some of these less well-known brothers of the great would not exchange places with their famous kinsmen. After Gen. Garfield was elected president, his brother, a pliable and hard-working farmer, went to Mentor to pay a visit to the number one of his family who had brought the name of Garfield into international renown. "Jim, I don't like it a bit," the brother declared, "in my opinion it's the very worst thing that has happened to you." His words were prophetic—the next time he looked into the face of his brother, the deadly bullet of the assassin had brought the life of the late President Pitt Edison, the inconspicuous brother of the man who has worked miracles with the forces of electricity, would not have exchanged places with the wizard of Menlo Park. "I am not a genius, thank God," he was in the habit of saying, "am only a plain farmer, and I am perfectly satisfied."

The brother of the hero of the Little Bighorn, the tragic passing of Gen. George A. Custer, America's premier Indian fighter, who on June 25, 1876, with 25 of his men, was massacred by Sitting Bull's band at the battle of the Little Bighorn in the Bad Lands of Montana, is still fresh in the memories of Americans, but how many of them know that the brother and only surviving male relative of the noble cavalryman is still in the flesh and living quietly and comfortably on the farm near Monroe, Mich., on which Gen. Custer and his slain brothers passed their boyhood days?

Nevin J. Custer is his name, and he owes it to his Indian horror of war that he is not on the list of those of his family who perished on the Little Bighorn. Two other brothers, Thomas

W. and Benton C., had allied themselves with the fortunes of the general, and they shared his fate. Lieut. James Cuthbert, the husband of their sister Margaret, was in the ill-fated company, as was also the general's nephew, Autie Reed.

Nevin J. Custer, with no aspiration beyond the successful cultivation of the homestead which once sheltered the trio lured to death by Crazy Horse, makes no secret of the fact that his tastes have always been for the simple life and that he has always been a man of peace. In his frank way, too, he might be called an unsentimental philosopher. At the recent unveiling of the bronze equestrian statue of Gen. Custer at Monroe, this surviving brother was one of the guests of honor, and when he delivered his speech, in which he declared that Gen. Custer stood among the world's greatest cavalry leaders, a friend of the family asked Nevin how he managed to escape his comrade's fate during such an affecting tribute.

"I couldn't help thinking as the president was saying all those nice things about George and the rest," Nevin Custer replied, "how much better it would have been if my brother hadn't allowed his impetuosity to get the better of his judgment on that day out on Little Big Horn. You know that Gen. Terry and all his command were in the near neighborhood and if only he hadn't divided his cavalry and kept his men together until Terry came up, there would have been no use for that statue over yonder."

Creighton M. Foraker, brother of the famous Ohio ex-senator, is an exceptionally popular in the entire Southwest. His business ventures have been satisfactory in the main, and he is raised as one of the most prosperous cattle men in his state.

The brother of a Vice Presidential Candidate, William Gassaway Davis of West Virginia in the shape of a nomination as Alton B. Wilson's running mate on the Democratic national ticket, in 1904, was a picturesque figure who lived near Martinsburg, W. Va. Receiving news of the situation at Winchester, the older brother left for the scene of action without an hour's delay, but Michael was obliged to remain in the Ohio river region to superintend the soldiers vote, a duty which detained him just long enough to prevent him from sharing the ride to "Winchester town."

Gen. Sheridan's account of the writing of Thomas Buchanan Read's famous poem, "Sheridan's Ride," differs widely from the one usually accepted. Immediately after the ride, according to the surviving brother, a New York weekly periodical pictured the hero on a big black horse tearing off the miles to "Winchester town" with daredevil speed. At that time these popular entertainments to raise money for the war in full force, and a big affair of artillery. The crowd in Cincinnati, captivated under the direction of the popular electionist and public reader, having Thomas Buchanan Read, then a resident of Cincinnati, compose a poem for the opening of the great charity bazaar.

The poet, then in the full enjoyment of his popularity and solicited on all sides by publishers eager to bring out his verse, was shy. The time was too short, he argued, and he was not adept at the art of "writing an inspiration," said Murdoch, spreading out the paper containing the picture of Sheridan on the big black horse, and pointing to the poem. "By George, Murdoch, you're right! It is capital. Read agreed, with enthusiasm. Then he seized the pencil and a sheet of paper and dashed off the well-known verses in less than half an hour."

That night, at the opening exercises of the fair, Murdoch read the poem with thrilling effect. His vast audience was moved to the greatest excitement, and he was compelled to repeat the reading several times before the enthusiasm abated. When the poem appeared in print it was hailed at once as a classic poem of the war, and it has confirmed the early opinions of its critics. Today it is practically the one achievement by which Thomas Buchanan Read is remembered.

Although the reputation of the brother of Mississippi's new senator has not passed far beyond the boundaries of his native state, it would be difficult to discover a lecture in the Bayou state in which "Kit" Williams is a stranger. Man of letters that he is, with the scholar's preference for exclusiveness and freedom from the ordinary affairs of life, Senator John Sharp Williams is not a notable "mixer." That is one of the chief points of difference between these two sons of Col. Christopher Sharp, in his life-time the most powerful man in the state of Mississippi, and the man who is now the chief of the telegraph of the state, cotton the many grover in the state of Mississippi.

Senator's brother is called by the few surviving friends of the old colonel, to a markedly inferior position. He is more familiar "Kit," has made "mixing" matter of special study, with the result that no member of the always popular Williams family has been made a senator on the field at Shiloh for conspicuous gallantry. In his early years, "Kit" Williams is a well-executed replica of his scholarly brother. The suave manner, the gentlemanly ease, even the communication draw are all his, but there the Marshall Foraker organized a band of stalwart deputies and went in search of the bandit and his men. Retelling the difficulty of capturing the band in the open, Foraker employed stratagem. First, he sent a trusted man to join the gang and watch for an opportunity to deliver the leader into the hands of the law. When matters were progressing favorably toward a satisfactory conclusion, word was received at the outlaw camp that an express car bearing a big shipment of gold would pass through a narrow cut shortly after midnight on a specified morning. It seemed to "Black Jack" and his followers to be an easy proposition, a simple matter of dynamiting the car door and overcoming the scruples of the messenger. They took for chieftain the pariah surrounded them with a superior force. Some of the hands were killed and a number were captured, but the leader escaped into the mountains, wounded but still defiant. His wound was so severe that he was compelled to crawl out of hiding in order to secure medical attendance. He was recognized by the surgeon to whom he applied, and Foraker was notified. The fugitive was secured and the jury and the hangman did the rest.

Creighton Foraker is well known and exceedingly popular in the entire Southwest. His business ventures have been satisfactory in the main, and he is raised as one of the most prosperous cattle men in his state.

In his early years, "Kit" Williams is a well-executed replica of his scholarly brother. The suave manner, the gentlemanly ease, even the communication draw are all his, but there the was colonel of the Second Michigan cavalry. In July 1852 Phil was made brigadier general of volunteers and put in command of the army of Ohio. Gen. Sheridan had never become quite reconciled to his young brother's clerical aspiration, and he offered him the opportunity to become a soldier, proposing that Michael should accompany him in his campaign as volunteer aid.

To the great surprise of everybody the young man, who had definitely made up his mind to become a Dominican monk, accepted and that same year was on the field with his brother at Perryville and Stone River. He continued in the service throughout the war and at its close was mustered out honorably with the rank of captain of volunteers. A short time afterward he was appointed first lieutenant in the regular army, and promotion followed rapidly. In 1892, when adjutant general of the department of the East, he was retired at his own request, after thirty years of continuous service.

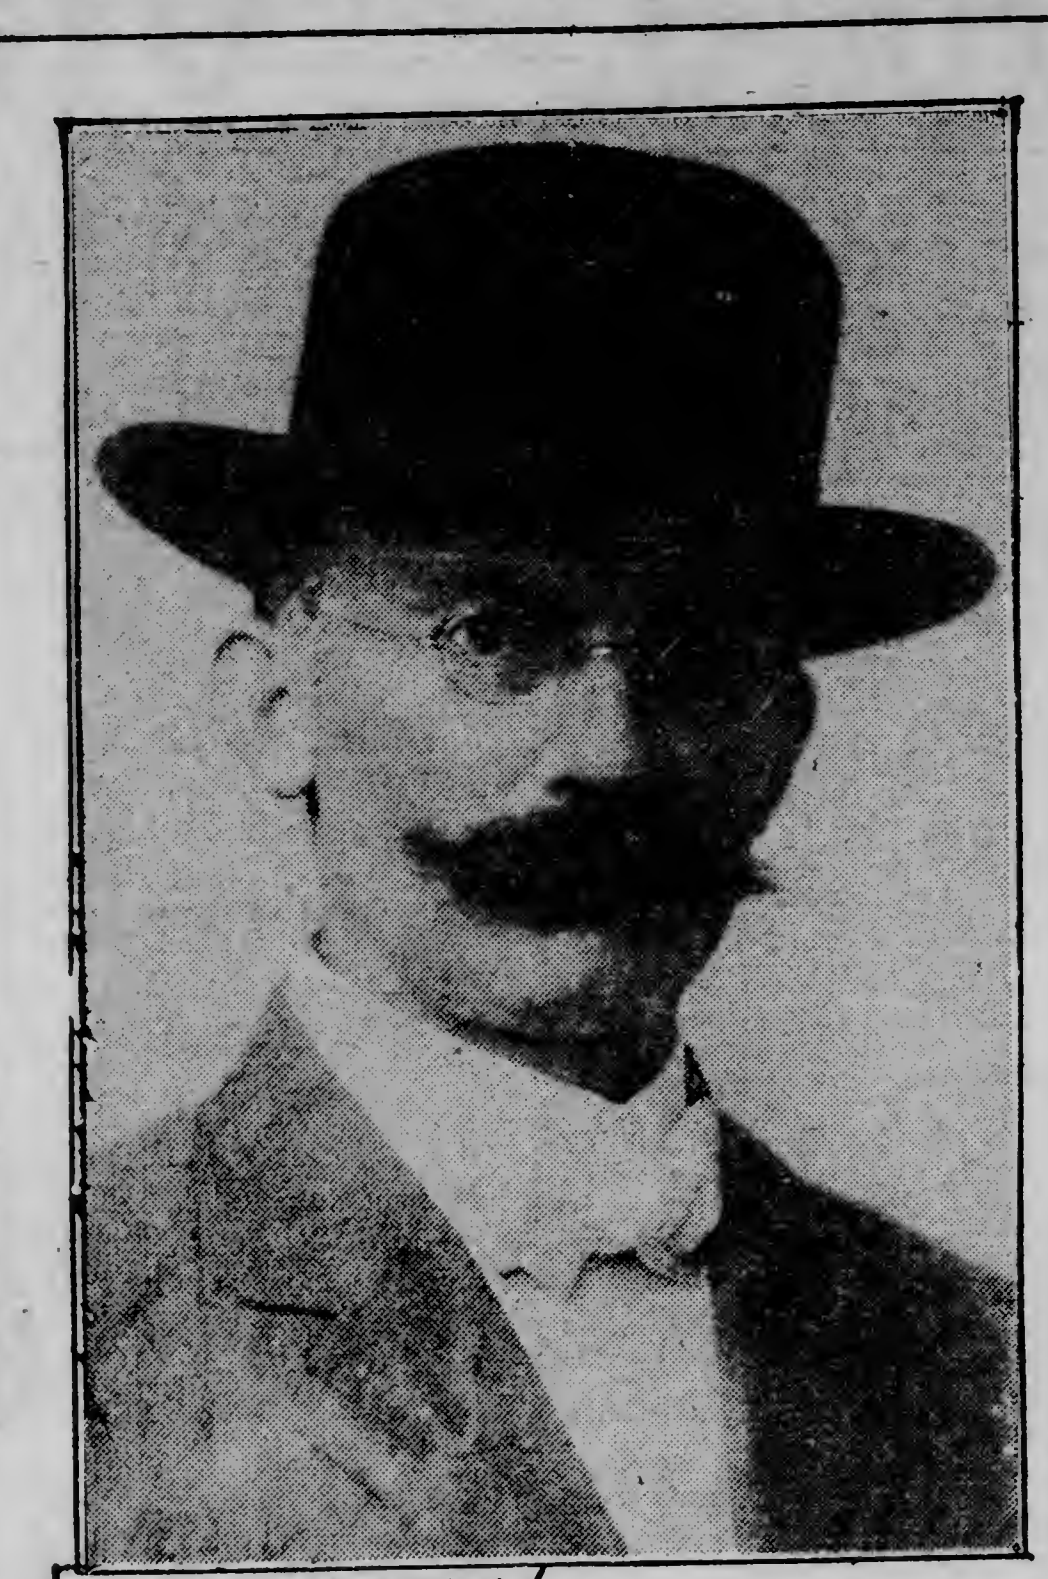

It has always been the great regret of Gen. Michael Sheridan's career that he was not a participant in the historic estate in a single night. The extraordinary publicity that is inevitable in the case of two such prominent officials as the president of the United States and the head of the Standard Oil company puts the brothers of these exalted individuals into almost total eclipse. Certain members of the Rockefeller family manage to shine, albeit dimly, by reflected light, but Frank, John D.'s less familiar brother, seems to have tried his best to keep out of reach of the central effulgence. He has had an energetic career as a Kansas stock raiser and capitalist, and at various times he has not been at one with Brother John, but on the whole he has held his own and has acquired the reputation of being a "good fellow," a distinction which no other Rockefeller of his immediate family has seemed to crave.

Another brother of a famous American, a brother little known outside his own immediate circle, but of great importance in his own restricted sphere, was the late "Will" Cannon. "Uncle Joe's" most faithful friend and financial adviser. For forty years he was his more exalted brother's silent partner in "Uncle Joe's" and himself, "Uncle Will" and "Uncle Joe," as they were always known by their Danville neighbors, were inseparable during the life of the former, and when he died the latter went about disconsolate—"like a ship without a rudder," his friends describe his forlornness.

As in the case of the multimillionaire Stephenson brothers, the Cannon fortune, never having a serious difference and furnishing an admirable example of fraternal consideration. It is "Uncle Joe's" frank tribute to the work of his comparatively unknown brother that without the latter's help he could not have attained his own political eminence.

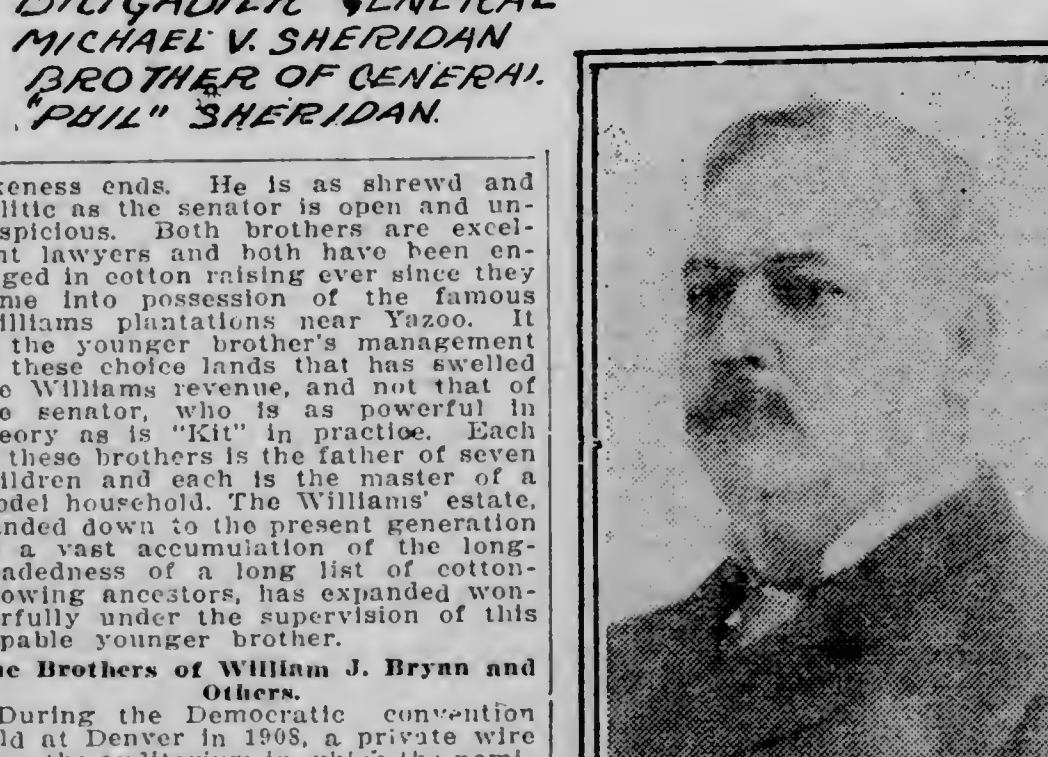

Richard W. Sherman, younger brother of the late president of the United States, is an engineer and surveyor at Utica, N. Y., and active Democrat. Peter B. Olney, brother of Mr. Cleveland's secretary of state, has been practicing law in New York City since 1866. Charles Jackson Talm, who is two years the senior of his celebrated brother, Robert Treat Talm, the philanthropist, is prouder of his secure a soldier in the Civil War than of his direct descent from a signer of the Declaration of Independence. Good Volume of Inquiry for Investment Propositions in Duluth.

Failure of Bureau to Announce Census Figures
Is Disappointing.

There are signs of an awakening in the investment branch of the real estate market, although it is not yet reflected in the deeds filed with the register of deeds. Several big deals are under way and dealers say that inquiry is stronger and of greater volume, especially from the East.

"Eastern capitalists are looking toward Duluth for good speculative and investment propositions," said a real estate dealer this morning. "I have heard from several of them during the past week asking me to communicate with them if I have any propositions that are attractive. Some of my correspondents show such familiarity with the city that they mention specific pieces of business and acreage property, asking if it is possible to secure them at a reasonable figure. Superior street property is closely held, of course, but I believe there will be some big deals in avenue, West First street and East Superior street property during the next few weeks."

For months, the investment market has been without a semblance of activity and the revival of interest is encouraging to the real estate men. While the weekly payment sales of residence lots were in progress, the speculators and investors of large capital held off to see what the effect would be on the city. The success of the different sales held during the summer was an encouraging sign to them. It indicated that Duluth people of small means have faith in the future of the city and faith in the city on the part of the residents is a breeder of a like feeling in outside people.

The interest in acreage continues to grow and it is said there is strong competition for desirable pieces of land which may be platted for city lots or market garden tracts next year. The weekly payment plan of selling lots, which found favor this year, is attracting more real estate men and there will be some Duluth firms in that field next year for the first time. Naturally land within the city limits and suitable for plating is being sought by many people and most of the owners are now too anxious to sell, being content to wait for the competition to boost prices to a profitable figure.

There is disappointment among the real estate dealers over the failure of the census bureau to announce the Duluth figures. Real estate men were counting on using the Duluth census as an argument with outside investors when they were asked to sell, being content to wait for the competition to boost prices to a profitable figure.

John M. Brenton, the special agent, says that his work here will be completed next week, and within a very short time after his return to Washington the Duluth figures will be announced. It is expected that the figures will be out by this time next week and the suspense will be over.

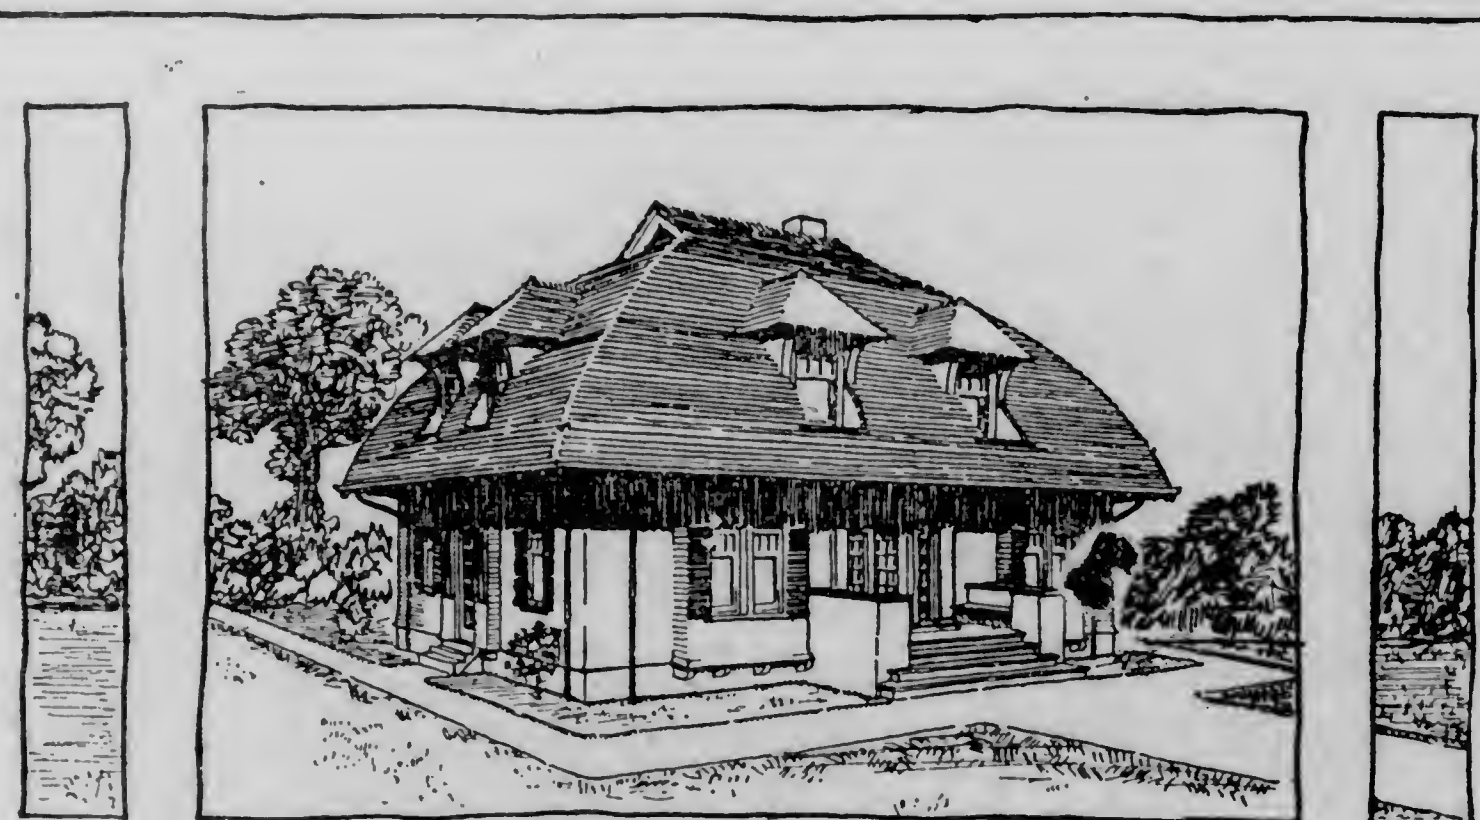

The real estate exchange took an active interest in the taking of the census and gave valuable assistance to the supervisor and his assistants. The aid was all of a legitimate sort, however, and real estate men are certain that the Duluth census is an honest and fairly accurate one, and the figures, when announced, will show a substantial growth for the city. The new census will put Duluth in a new class of cities and will cause a large number of outside people who have hitherto not paid any attention to Duluth investments to investigate and probably to invest.

The dock property issue is not dead, and real estate men having interest in that class of property say that some deals may be expected within the next few weeks. Dock property is scarce, and the people who expect to have need for waterfront sites during the next few years are beginning to realize that their needs must be supplied now or

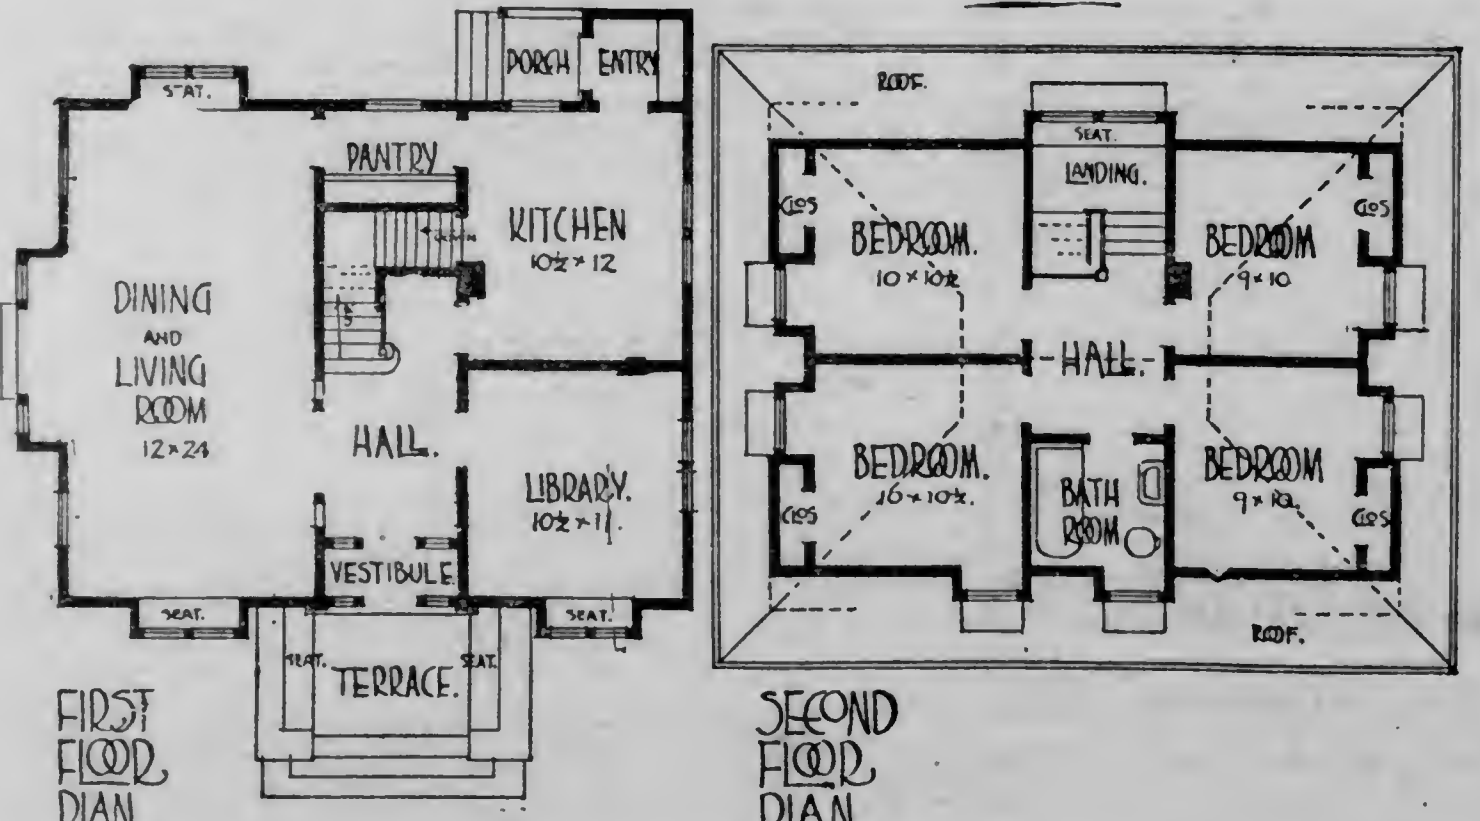

West Duluth offers the only dock property available, and in consequence the eyes of those interested are turned toward that section of the city. Purchases of land during the past summer by the Hanna and Carnegie coal interests show the trend of sentiment and activity. The Canadian Northern railway road is understood to have purchased large tracts for terminals, and even West Duluth's vast waterfront will soon be entirely taken up.

The cold weather has put a damper on the sales of residence lots, but many deals are being made nevertheless. Whitney Wall & Co. report a surprisingly large volume of inquiry for Homewood lots from North and South Dakota and points in Northwestern Minnesota. The Dowling-Kirby-Hepburn company says that lots in West Duluth are going fast, and they expect to dispose of every lot in the new addition before the snow covers the ground. Scattered lots in other additions put on the market during the past summer are being sold, and the interest is so great that success is assured for sales next year.

MODEST HOME WHICH WOULD COST
$4,000 TO BUILD IN DULUTH

ANTHONY PUCK & HOLSTEAD, ARCHITECTS

Some general remarks upon small houses may serve to bring out some of the merits of the above sketch. Economy is more or less a chief concern in houses of this size, and therefore any mere architectural display or elaboration should never be attempted, while some nice treatment of detail, of a simple sort and the outcome of simple, honest and expressive construction should be sought after. Elaboration of any part or parts may not relatively add much to the cost, but its presence may easily strike a wrong note in the design, and is only an attempt to ape the style and dignity of a mansion or large residence, which a house of this size ought not to assume.

The sketch shows a very good arrangement of rooms. The dining room is a nice feature and always gives a satisfactory result, and the kitchen and pantry are well placed with regard to using the rear part for dining purposes.

The bedroom accommodation is ideal, and by getting the ceilings well up into the slope of the roof, there is a great gain in economy and perhaps in artistic effect.

The floors throughout would be of maple. The finish in the hall, dining and living room and library, fir or Southern pine, and in the kitchen, bathroom and bedrooms, enameled white pine.

The cost to build such a home would be, in Duluth or vicinity, $4,000, inclusive of plumbing and heating.

The last two are now for sale, one of which you can move into Monday or Tuesday morning. Come in and get particulars of the home that would cost you, to build at cost, 10 per cent more. Then take it from us on our Rental Payment basis and SHOW WHO'S WHO.

15,000 ACRES

We now have 15,000 acres for sale from $1200 to $2000 PER ACRE—$200 PER ACRE DOWN, AND $100 PER ACRE YEARLY.

You wonder why you can buy this land so cheap? Well, land in the North Yankin Valley sold ten years ago for ten to twenty dollars per acre while the celebrated Hood River Valley land could be purchased for that price even five years ago.

Now—the land in either of these districts is selling $300.00 per acre and upwards.

Why not reserve 40 or 80 acres—terms to suit every purse. This is a most excellent investment. The facts that you want: FRUIT CROPS IN VICINITY YIELDED THIS SEASON $200.00 TO $400.00 PER ACRE. No crop failure in 15 years. Soil is a sandy clay loam, containing vegetable mold. Strawberries alone pay $300.00 to $400.00 per acre. ONLY SECTION of Northwest that yielded large crops this season. Duluth is the natural home market for Bayfield section.

There is no other well-developed fruit district that compares so favorably to ours as the celebrated Grimsby, Ontario district. You will find upon investigation that soil and climatic conditions are identical with Bayfield Peninsula Fruit District lands in the Grimsby District selling for $300.00 to $400.00 per acre.

Our lands will be just as valuable when developed. Can't you drop in here during the day or evening? I want to tell you of these fruit lands.

MAY EXTEND THE STRIKE

Teamsters' President Suggests National Express Walkout.

Drivers in New York Have Brought That Business Near Standstill.

New York, Oct. 31.—The strike of the express company drivers and helpers, which has brought the express business here to a virtual standstill, is expected to spread today to the stable hands.

Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, now in Boston, has sent word that if necessary he will organize all the express drivers in the country and call them out on strike.

No express matter was moved in the early hours today, and the companies apparently confined their operations to preparations to break the strike. Strike-breakers are expected to arrive from Philadelphia today.

Dash of 100 Trucks.

The strikers were caught unaware in Jersey City early today when a dash of 100 trucks was made and the express matter brought to this city without trouble. No disorders were reported by the police in the early hours of the day.

Police Inspector Walsh today assigned 100 patrolmen to go out on express wagons. Ten wagons were sent out by the American Express company, each with a uniformed policeman by the driver.

Extra policemen have been stationed along the thoroughfares used by the wagons, to prevent trouble.

Two hundred strikebreakers from Pittsburgh are expected in Jersey City and will be put to work today.

Guards With Drivers.

Efforts at strike-breaking in the forenoon were confined to the American Express company's service. The company managed to move its covered trucks loaded with merchandise from their downtown receiving station to the Grand Central station. They came unmolested, a policeman standing by the driver and two special guards on the rear of the trucks.

Holt was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

FIRST HEARING HELD IN FARGO

Interstate Commerce Commission to Look Into Charges Against Roads.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the first time a hearing by the interstate commerce commission is slated for Fargo. Two cases are to come before it, both being charges against roads.

The date of the hearing was fixed some time ago by Secretary McLean of the commission and Chief Examiner Fugh will preside.

The first case is against the Soo railway. The milling company at Kalmi shipped some mustard seed to Minneapolis and alleges an overcharge. It could get no satisfaction from the company and placed the matter in the hands of the Northwestern Traffic bureau of this city which met with no better success and carried the case before the commission.

The other case is against the Southern Pacific and involves alleged excessive charges on a fruit shipment from Hayward, Cal., to Gardiner, Mont. The local bureau also has that in charge.

HOW THE STATUE LOOKED TO THE AVIATORS

"MISS LIBERTY."

New York, Oct. 31.—It was a rather novel view of the Liberty statue that was obtained by the birdmen who flew from Belmont Park to Bedloe's island and back. Miss Liberty seems to be turning her back on New Jersey when the home coming American sees her from the deck of his ship or the Staten Island commuter surveys her on his way home from work on the ferry route. Traffic always in front of Miss Liberty and she shows only her face to those who ride the waters.

MOISANT IS THE WINNER

Gets $10,000 Prize for Flight to the Liberty Statue.

Grahame-White Takes Bennett Cup—Flyers in Last Events.

Belmont Park, N. Y., Oct. 31.—John B. Moisant, the American aviator, was hailed here today as winner of the great flight yesterday to the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor and return for the $10,000 prize offered by Thomas F. Ryan.

In one of the most thrilling races in the history of aviation, Moisant beat his rivals, Count Jacques de Lesseps, the Frenchman, and Claude Grahame-White, the English winner of the big international event on Saturday, easily distancing his French competitor, but defeating the victor in the Gordon Bennett event by only 43 seconds.

This margin, however narrow, was sufficient, although it was thought until early today that the American had not clinched his victory as it was understood the race was still open for competition today. The Aero Club of America, however, sustained Moisant's protest against further competition for the Liberty prize, ruling that the most as originally scheduled closed with yesterday's events, nothing being an extra or added day.

Big Prize to Moisant.

Thus Moisant wins the big race and gets the $10,000 prize. Moisant won in the elapsed time 24:38.4; Grahame-White second in 35:21.30; De Lesseps, third in 41:56.55.

The total earnings of the aviators up to the close of the schedules last night are:

Moisant, $11,500; Grahame-White, $7,000; Hoxsey, $2,675; Latham, $2,100; De Lesseps, $1,650; Johnstone, $1,625; Findley, $1,400; Brooks, $900; Aubrun, $800.

BURGLARS QUIT WITHOUT BOOTY

Blow Three Doors of Safe That Contains $28,000.

Canal Dover, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Burglars broke into the state bank at Bolivar, eight miles northeast of here, early today, and attempted to blow the safe, containing $28,000. They failed, apparently because they found their stock of nitro-glycerin exhausted when, after tearing off three doors of the safe, they discovered another barrier in their way. They fled, leaving the interior of the bank a wreck.

Steel Companies Quiescent and Crumpacker May Be Defeated.

More Enthusiasm in Bryan's Indiana Meetings Than in Roosevelt's.

By Willis J. Abbot.
(Copyright, 1910, by Joseph H. Bortles.)

Chicago, Oct. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chicagoans, of course, know, and particularly Chicago politicians and public men, how closely this great city impinges upon the Indiana line and how vitally it affects Indiana politics.

Right square up to the Chicago city limits comes the congressional district now held by Edgar Dean Crumpacker, a Republican who is now serving his seventh consecutive term in congress. Mr. Crumpacker's last majority in his district was 6,212. In earlier contests he had held the district by much larger majorities, approaching at times 2,000. Notwithstanding all this I find that the Democratic state committee of Indiana, the congressional committee in Chicago, and particularly Mr. Crumpacker's opponent, John B. Peterson, of Crown Point, believes that the sitting member can be defeated.

The Crumpacker district is one of the vital points in the Indiana Republican armor. Already the Democrats hold eleven of the thirteen districts there. As I said in an earlier letter, William O. Rouse, Republican, of the Sixth district, now represented by John O. Rouse, Republican, of the most certain to be captured by the Democrats this year. This leaves the

FIFTEEN HUNDRED WIRELESS OFFICES

Directory of Stations Is Issued By the Government.

Washington, Oct. 31.—With the publication of the government's wireless telegraphy directory, some idea is gained of the extent to which the wireless is now used. In this directory there are listed 1,520 stations. This includes shore stations and ships, but does not take into consideration the warships of foreign governments, stations equipped and operated by amateurs.

The directory is the work of the bureau of steam engineering of the United States navy. There are about 100 shore stations scattered around the globe. Of these 88 are on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts of the United States, 18 on the Great Lakes, 21 on the Pacific coast and 16 in Alaska.

A separate list shows the 47 shore stations of the United States navy and another the 34 ships of the navy. The stations of the United States army are listed separately, showing 30 land stations and 16 stations aboard vessels of that service.

Five Hundred People Cheer the Democratic Candidates.

Jaques, Gray and Johnson Speak to an Enthusiastic Audience.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democrats of Carlton county donned their war paint Saturday evening, and in consequence a big audience crowded the Nelson opera house of this city to do honor to party's candidates for congressman, governor and secretary of state. Fully 500 voters of the county heard the candidates speak on the issues.

John F. O'Brien presided at the meeting and first introduced the Democratic candidate for congress, Alfred Jaques of Duluth. Mr. Jaques implored that now was the time right for the "voice of the people to be obeyed." For over an hour he held his hearers to the closest attention, while he denounced the actions of Congressman Miller, and the audience was particularly generous in its applause when this speaker was demonstrating Miller's betrayal to his constituency in the last congress.

Gray Heavily Cheered.

Following the Jaques speech, the chairman introduced James Gray, the candidate for governor who was greeted by cheers and hearty applause, and who immensely pleased his hearers by his quiet yet masterly discourse on state topics. He was entertainingly talk with bits of humor, which carried the largest audience of Democrats ever gathered in Cloquet with him. Every

LINE UP FOR LAND IN SOUTH DAKOTA

More Than One Hundred Already Before the Land Office.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 31.—Occupying every available foot of space in the corridors of the federal building, packed under desks and piled on top of them, more than 100 eager human beings are waiting today to be as close as possible to the head of the line to enter the land office and make selections of claims on the Standing Rock reservation.

The line is a long one, extending from the morning at 9 o'clock. The people began to occupy their places in the line while they are resting in hotels. This has proved excessive to a few as some of these temporary holders of the precious space have sold out to others who submitted more lucrative propositions to them than did the original holders.

There are 5,000 claims of 160 acres each to be filed on the drawing.

CIGARMAKERS GO TO BREAK STRIKE

Men and Women Are Sent From Pittsburg to Tampa Factories.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 31.—Sixty-five skilled cigarmakers, among them several women, left the city last night for Tampa, Fla., where they are to take the place of strikers in cigar factories. Agents have been in the city for a week, and as they only wanted the best workers they had some difficulty in making up their first quota. Inducements of an extraordinary nature were held out before they secured their quota.

CHINA TO HAVE PARLIAMENT SOON

Senate Believes the Demand Is About to Be Granted.

Pekin, Oct. 31.—It is believed the throne has decided to accede to the demand of the senate and the provincial delegates for the early convocation of a popular parliament.

In the senate today and in the presence of the leading grand councilors, Prince Yu Liang, a member of the grand council, said the entire nation was agreed upon the necessity of the early establishment of a general parliament. The senators understood this to mean their memorial would be granted.

The importance of this concession scarcely can be overestimated in view of the throne's refusal to entertain a similar request made by the provincial assemblies last June.

The program fixed by the late emperor dowager provided for the construction of a general representative assembly in 1913, at the end of a nine-year period of preparation. No sooner had this plan been made known in a decree than a popular agitation was begun.

ELECTION IN MANY STATES

Voters of Thirty-Eight Members of Union Will Vote Nov. 8.

Twenty-Eight Governors and New Congress Are to Be Chosen.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Election of state officers, judges of the supreme court, railroad commissioners, etc., will be held in thirty-eight states on Tuesday, Nov. 8. Maine, Vermont, Arkansas and Georgia, have held their state elections, but the two latter states will, a week from tomorrow, elect representatives in congress. Maryland, Mississippi, Virginia and West Virginia, likewise, will elect congressmen. Maine and Vermont have already chosen their congressmen and state officers. In twenty-eight of the states, governors and full state tickets are to be elected. In nine other states of the supreme court and minor officials are to be chosen, while in Indiana state officers, except governor, will be elected.

A number of the states will elect members of the legislature. The term of thirty United States senators expires March 3, 1911. The legislatures of Alabama, Maryland and Vermont have elected their senators.

DISCUSS HEALTH IN ARMY AND NAVY

Association of Military Surgeons Meeting in Richmond, Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 31.—The executive committee of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, which will inaugurate its nineteenth annual convention here tomorrow, held a preliminary meeting today and completed arrangements for the discussion of problems relating to health in the army and navy life, which will mark the convention's sessions.

Among the leading foreign physicians who have arrived are Dr. D. Huette of France, Dr. Kling Sun Yau and Dr. Liang Hu King Chang of the Chinese army, and Lieut. Col. George S. Hendon, president of the organization of military surgeons of Canada.

When the convention is opened tomorrow, Governor Mann of Virginia and Mayor Richardson of Richmond will extend the state and city's welcome. On Wednesday the army and national guard will be the subject of general discussion, on Thursday the navy, and on Friday, at the closing session, the United States public health and marine hospital service.

ARMY OFFICERS GRADUATE.

Twenty-Three Have Completed Course in War College.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Twenty-three regular army officers, ranking in rank from lieutenant colonels to captains, today graduated from the Army War college, representing the seventh class to pass through the institution in order to acquire all the benefits of modern research in military science. They have completed a course of twelve months in the study of constantly arising problems in the handling of troops, equipment and similar matters. There were no formal graduating exercises. The officers shortly will leave Washington for their posts in various parts of the United States and the Philippines.

BEWAITS THE RATE RULINGS

Burnham Says They Will Cost C. B. & Q. $800,000 Annually.

Tells Commissioners Road Is Less Able to Raise Surplus.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Rate decisions at Denver, Spokane and other Western points will cost the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy $800,000.

The old rebating system reduced the freight revenue of the Burlington from 3 to 5 per cent.

The Burlington is not in as good a condition to accumulate a surplus now as it was ten years ago.

The foregoing were among the statements made at the rate hearing today by Claude G. Burnham, vice president of the Burlington, who was the first witness.

Attorney T. J. Norton, who represents the railways as a whole at the hearing, said that he had only one more witness to introduce.

On the subject of Western rate decisions Mr. Burnham said:

"The decisions have not been ordered into effect as yet, but unless they materially modified they will, conservatively estimated, cause the Burlington a loss of $800,000 annually."

Attorney Dawes of the Burlington asked what effect on revenues relating east of the Missouri and before the law made the practice illegal.

"Rebates were given almost exclusively on high-class freight," replied the witness. "The result was a rate that was much lower than was fair to the railroads, but at no time did rebates cause more than a 3 to 5 per cent decrease in the revenue of the Burlington."

"You have mentioned," said Attorney Lyon of the commission, "that the proposed increases would give the Burlington a loss of $800,000 annually."

WORKING ON NEW MAP OF THE WORLD

Prof. Willis Will Be Sent to Argentina to Collect Data.

Washington, Oct. 31.—At the request of the Argentine government, Prof. Bailey Willis of the United States geological survey, who has just returned from a South American tour in the interest of the great geological world map in which the civilized powers are co-operating, has been selected to execute geological investigations in the Argentine. The plan has a broad scope and Prof. Willis will be away two years and possibly longer.

The world map project is expected to occupy at least ten years to complete in this country, and in view of inaccessibility of Tibet and portions of South Africa and elsewhere, may never be regarded as finished. Its object is to encourage topographic work universal, to increase geographical knowledge of the world and to secure a uniform standard and a reliable world authority. The map will be on a uniform scale of sixteen miles to the inch.

Association of Military Surgeons Meeting in Richmond, Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 31.—The executive committee of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, which will inaugurate its nineteenth annual convention here tomorrow, held a preliminary meeting today and completed arrangements for the discussion of problems relating to health in the army and navy life, which will mark the convention's sessions.

Among the leading foreign physicians who have arrived are Dr. D. Huette of France, Dr. Kling Sun Yau and Dr. Liang Hu King Chang of the Chinese army, and Lieut. Col. George S. Hendon, president of the organization of military surgeons of Canada.

When the convention is opened tomorrow, Governor Mann of Virginia and Mayor Richardson of Richmond will extend the state and city's welcome. On Wednesday the army and national guard will be the subject of general discussion, on Thursday the navy, and on Friday, at the closing session, the United States public health and marine hospital service.

ARMY OFFICERS GRADUATE.

Twenty-Three Have Completed Course in War College.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Twenty-three regular army officers, ranking in rank from lieutenant colonels to captains, today graduated from the Army War college, representing the seventh class to pass through the institution in order to acquire all the benefits of modern research in military science. They have completed a course of twelve months in the study of constantly arising problems in the handling of troops, equipment and similar matters. There were no formal graduating exercises. The officers shortly will leave Washington for their posts in various parts of the United States and the Philippines.

GARY, IND., NOW HAS 16,802 POPULATION.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The population of Gary, Ind., is 16,802 as enumerated in the thirteenth census. Gary was not incorporated when the 1900 census was taken.

MARINE LAID UP FOR THE WINTER

Steamers James Corrigan and Josiah G. Munro Are Retired.

Outlook for Month of November Not Bright for Independents.

The quietness in the lake trade and the determination of independent owners to retire their vessels earlier than usual were reflected in the local harbor this morning in the laying up of the steamers James Corrigan and Josiah G. Munro for the winter. Both are owned by the Frontier Steamship company of North Tonawanda, N. Y.

The Corrigan has been lying in ordinary in the local harbor most of the summer and made only a few trips. The officers, who were with the ship while it was at anchor with the possibility of cargo remaining, left today, and the vessel will remain at anchor for the winter. The steamer Munro was towed to the same point in the lower harbor this morning and will also lie there for the winter.

The steamer J. C. Wallace of the Acme Steamship company, a Duluth line, has been laid up for the winter for some time at the Zenith Furine company.

Although a number of boats have been in ordinary at different times during the season, the Wallace was the first to be laid up for the winter, and the laying up of the Corrigan and Munro today indicates that Nov. 1 is taken as the date for retiring their boats by some of the independents who have had a quiet season.

Fourteen cargoes of ore were taken out of this port yesterday, but nearly all of it was in contract boats or the ships of the Pittsburgh Steamship company. Nearly all the vessels about ore will be moved by Nov. 10, and it is expected that the Pittsburgh company will retire most of its vessels about the middle of the month. There is no ore for the wild carriers.

The independents who expect to remain in the trade during November are looking to the coal trade for their cargoes. The coal movement is constantly increasing, but the owners taking coal cargoes are driven to the necessity of returning down the lakes light, and carrying coal under those circumstances is not a profitable proceeding.

There are few grain cargoes moving from this port, and the rate of 1 cent is unprofitable except to those ships which must run down the lakes and would rather take grain cargoes than return light. On the whole, the prospects for November are not looked upon as bright by the independents, and a concerted movement toward winter quarters is expected this week.

LAKE TRAFFIC SHOWS DECREASE

Total Movement for Year to Date Still Ahead of 1909.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Domestic commerce on the Great Lakes during the month of September showed a smaller volume than any of the preceding months, a total of 11,892,012 short tons being shipped, according to figures announced yesterday by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. This is less than the total for September, 1909.

Smaller shipments of iron ore and miscellaneous freight account for the decrease. The iron ore shipments, 6,009,682 long tons, were 12 per cent less than the preceding month's total as well as the total for September 1909, though the shipments of the whole year thus far are in excess of the total for the corresponding months of last year.

Both hard and soft coal shipments for the month, while lower than the figures of the preceding months, compare well with the 1909 total. The soft coal shipment of hard coal is about 25 per cent greater than last year, and the total of soft coal traffic for the nine months of the season, 13,657,705 short tons exceeded by far the totals for any preceding year.

Lumber shipments continued in excess of those in the summer months. Movements of corn and oats showed heavy gains during the month of September, while wheat and barley have smaller totals than a year ago, the bulk of grain shipments, however, comparing favorably with the corresponding 1909 shipments.

The total vessel movement on the Great Lakes during September, as measured by the departure of vessels, showed 8,847 vessels of 14,743,014 net tons register. This is a decrease over last year, the figures reported during September, 1909, including 19,011 vessels of 15,057,489 tons register.

FOUNDATION FOR DOCK DAMAGED BY STEAMER.

The big freighter Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, collided with the end of the concrete foundation being built by the Barnett & Record company for Great Northern ore dock, No. 4 at Alouez, Saturday afternoon, damaging the dock to the extent of about $1,500.

The freighter was not damaged in the collision. The accident happened as the steamer was leaving the ore dock. About one foot of the foundation for the new dock will have to be reset.

CANADIAN LIGHTS OUT BY DEC. 10.

Canadian aids to navigation on the Great Lakes will be kept in operation until Dec. 10, and those of Lake Superior five days earlier, according to John Johnston, deputy minister of the Dominion department of marine and fisheries.

"All Canadian lights and fog alarms in Lake Superior will be kept in operation this autumn until Dec. 10, with the exception of Caribou Island, which may not be kept in operation later than Dec. 5, subject to weather conditions, or early closing of navigation," says Mr. Johnston's announcement. "Mariners must not rely upon finding any of these lights in operation later than the dates specified for closing."

As the present outlook is for an early closing of navigation, because of the prospect of increasing severity of cargoes, it is believed the dates fixed by the government for government removal of its aids to navigation will not inconvenience vessel interests.

FIRST STOCK CAR RACE FROM DULUTH TO HIBBING

Duluth and Range Autoists Will Have Speed Contest Sunday.

Cars Will Leave Spalding Hotel Corner at 8 O'Clock.

The first real race for stock cars ever held in this part of the country will be run off Sunday when Duluth and range autoists will engage in a speed contest to Hibbing.

The event is open to all and will be known as the Dr. Butcher Automobile Cup race. The winner will be presented with a $100 solid silver cup. Dr. Butcher is a Hibbing man and he announced some time ago that he would donate the cup if the race could be arranged.

The race will be under the auspices of the American Automobile association. The event is only for residents of St. Louis and Indiana counties. Entries may be sent to Oscar Rudd, secretary of the Hibbing Automobile club, at Hibbing.

The cars will start from the Spalding hotel at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. Any route may be taken to get out of the city but after the country road is reached the cars must follow in the wake of the first car. The race will leave two hours ahead of the others.

No special will be allowed in the event. All the cars must be stock cars and carry only the regular equipment. The race will end at Fred Smith's garage at the corner of Pine and Second avenues, Hibbing.

In the afternoon there will be automobile races at the St. Louis county fair park. In the evening there will be a banquet served to the visiting autoists by the Iron Range Automobile club.

The race has long been talked of on the range and it is probable that a great number of range cars will be entered. There are some powerful cars on the range and no one knows the roads between Duluth and Hibbing like those who drive over them continually.

The committee has made arrangements with the town officials all along the line so that the cars can go right through without slowing down.

Secretary Rudd is anxious to get as many entries as possible and as soon as possible that he may know how many are to enter. It is expected that there will be at least twenty cars entered in the event.

The range men are deserving of much credit for arranging what will undoubtedly be an interesting speed contest, and Duluth owners say that they are to be encouraged by a good entry list from this city.

JAMES GRAY
ENDORSED*Democratic Candidate Will Get Support of Swedish Temperance Society.*Prohibition Candidates in County Also Given Stamp of Approval.

James Gray for governor and Sam Y. Gordon for lieutenant governor were endorsed at a mass meeting in the cause of temperance at the Swedish temple, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street, yesterday afternoon. The meeting was held for the purpose of endorsing the candidacy of Bert N. Wheeler, prohibition candidate for state senator. Rev. Swaney Nelson was the presiding officer.

Mr. Wheeler spoke, and Rev. P. H. Norvik and Rev. J. J. Denney also talked to the audience. The meeting was under the auspices of the Scandinavian Temperance society, and another meeting under the same auspices will be held next Sunday evening in the Swedish mission church.

At yesterday's meeting the prohibition candidates of St. Louis county were endorsed. Rev. Mr. Daniels spoke strongly in favor of the candidates. The church was crowded and, naturally, was in complete sympathy with the sentiments expressed by the speakers.

Rev. Mr. Daniels said, among other things: "I am a Democrat and proud of it, but I am not a Democrat enough to vote the straight ticket. It is peculiarly appropriate to quote the Scriptures in this instance. I send you as sheep among wolves. Be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves. This applies exactly upon the temperance question. We have wolves to fight against."

"It is not advisable, in my opinion, to nominate men for office as prohibition candidates when the other parties have put in the field men who can be depended upon to be good officials. It is just as well not to make opposition for such men, but rather to put forth every effort to place members of our party on the ticket in opposition to those who are not likely to prove to be good officials."

Mr. Wheeler, in his speech, said that one way to overcome the liquor evil was to keep the men from the liquor, and that voting to keep liquor from the men was another way. He made an urgent plea for the cause of which he and the leaders, and made a decidedly good impression.

coming legislature will submit to the voters for approval or rejection a constitutional amendment providing for prohibition. Oklahoma will vote incidentally on a proposed constitutional amendment substituting local option for the present system of state-wide prohibition.

On Woman Suffrage.

Three states, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Washington will vote directly on the question of granting suffrage to women, while in Oklahoma a proposed amendment to the Constitution grants to all taxpayers, regardless of sex, the right of suffrage.

The largest number of questions to be voted upon in any one state is in Oregon, where thirty-two initiative and referendum measures will be upon the ballot for approval or rejection. Included in this number besides the proposed suffrage and prohibition amendments to the Constitution, is a bill, proposed by initiative, petition, amending the Oregon primary law and extending its provisions to presidential nominations, allowing voters to designate their choice for president and vice president; providing for direct nomination of party candidates for presidential electors; for election by party national nominating conventions.

One of the suggested amendments to the Oregon proposed by initiative petition provides for verdicts in the courts of civil jury in civil cases. Another proposed amendment increases the initiative and referendum and recall powers to the state.

Conservation of natural resources will be passed upon by voters of Wisconsin in the shape of a proposed amendment to the Constitution, authorizing the state to make annual appropriations for acquiring, preserving and developing water power and forests of the state. In Minnesota a proposed amendment to the Constitution authorizes the legislature to exempt from personal liability of private persons to be used for purposes of reforestation.

Judge C. M. Tift, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, is a visitor in Duluth, where he has a large circle of friends, today. CONCERNING WOMAN.

Women have no sense at all. And they're not improving. At least so thinks Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin. Prof. Ross will be remembered by many Duluthians as he presented the commencement address at the Duluth normal school in 1908 and was heard with pleasure. He is known to many other local people through his books, "Sin and Society," "Social Psychology" and others.

When Prof. Ross wrote "Social Psychology" some five or six years ago, he was sure that the female mind was improving. He looked about him and he was convinced that the good sense and intelligence of woman was rising. And now he wishes that he could recall that he had said a word to the contrary. His views have changed. He thinks woman is frivolous and light minded and illogical and not to be depended on. He is sure that she hasn't very much mind to make up and that any trifling exterior force can change it.

And all because of why? The hobble skirt! Prof. Ross, a while ago fairly groined with the progress that woman was making. She was becoming an individual, a companion and competitor of man. So thought Prof. Ross in his study, while he glowed with satisfaction and content. And then he looked out at the window and saw a hobble skirt and he looked longer and saw a tube gown and once more and bellowed a pean basket hat and the professor saw his thought of years shattered. He went forth his ultimatum, he retracted what he said about the good sense and intelligence of woman rising; and he said that hobble skirts and tube gowns and pean basket hats indicate a decline in the intelligence and good sense of the feminine sex, and what the public may eventually expect to see cheeks slit and nose rings used as badges of social standing. That is his opinion and he is busily at work reconstructing his psychology.

No use, is there with conviction enough to rise up and dispute the professor. Woman must blush for her lack of sense while she orders a hobble skirt. And she may philosophize on what little intelligence she has while she resolves for the shoe horn to help get into her new dress. But what can she do about it? Those who remember Prof. Ross's gentle manner of presenting his views will realize that what he said, he said in sorrow rather than disgust or anger, but if he could but point the way for woman to free herself except through the medium of not having the hobble skirt, right here in Duluth enough folks could easily be found for the formation of the first chapter of the Ross Society for the Cultivation of Sense in Woman and the Emancipation of the Sex from the Strange Hold of Fashion.

The introduction by Oscar Hammerstein of Victor Herbert's new light opera "Naughty Marietta," which is now playing in New York state, brings to the public eye a new contralto. Have Something to Say

By CARA REESE.

Don't stand up there before the crowd unless you have something to say. Don't stand up there before the paid admission audience unless you have some entertainment to offer. Don't stand up there to instruct, to exhort, to deliver a message or to inform the class of hearers, unless you have a vocabulary and a few thoughts behind it. When the children or the elders desire to look upon chronos and art casts they resort to the galleries or museum and do not assemble in class rooms or sit decorously in sanctuaries or crowd on the curbstones. You must have something to offer to the eyes of the crowd and to the ears of the hearers. Don't stand up before the cats, dogs and birds without being prepared.

By being prepared does not mean that the particular appearance and that you are primed for the certain least means that you have given attention to the subject on which you are suddenly called upon to speak. That your experience in life has been broad and thorough enough to warrant remarks or facts for fact wisdom and clear insight into people and their affairs, and that you have before a street crowd, assembly or congregation unless you have something to say and know how to say it. There is small credit in a pose merely for effect and no credit in a pose for effect and to stand up before listeners on a sudden demand and have nothing to say is bad enough, but it is many times worse to deliberately pose with nothing to offer. There are empty heads.

will be held tomorrow afternoon at the club room of the library. An interesting program has been prepared and any interested is invited to attend the meeting.

EXPENSIVE KICKS.
Pavlowa and Mordkin Command $12,000 a Week.

Some folk "kick" on the slightest pretext, not so Mme. Anna Pavlowa and M. Michel Mordkin, the czar's favorite dancers, who are touring America with the Imperial Russian ballet in "coular opera," and who will be seen for the first time in Duluth. The little trinket of $12,000 a week, which is the price of their services, is a little thing in common with the art centers of Europe has come mad over the subject of Russian dancing. The government even grants them a public esteem even greater than grand opera and ballet. It holds a place in the government's eyes as a professional devotion. It requires the artist at the age of 25, to two bestows upon him a comfortable pension for life.

The czar is the grand patron of the national art, and so it follows that Michel Mordkin, himself the silent director of an ambitious American tour, acquiescing to the requirements of the czar's spirit in the operatic movement in America, he permitted the two favorite dancers of the Russian dancing, Mme. Anna Pavlowa and M. Michel Mordkin, to appear in a new and original performance. The impression made by these artists is so great that properly be called a furore—resulted in overtures for the government to not only grant a six weeks' season to the Metropolitan Opera company, but in an effort to encourage interest in the subject has sanctioned an American tour of twenty weeks.

About Weddings

By AMANDA MOORE.

Only the nearest relatives and a few intimate friends receive invitations to a wedding, if it is to be a quiet one. Otherwise all those who are on the visiting list of the parents of the bride and of the bridegroom, as well as relatives and near friends, must be asked.

When a bride is married in a traveling suit the number of bridesmaids is usually limited to one and very often no maid at all follows. A long retinue of maids is fashionable at a big wedding. The bridegroom buys the bride's bouquet, that of the bride's mother, the bridesmaid's presents and bouquets, and pays for carriage in which he starts off with his wife for their honeymoon. The clergyman's fee is also his expense.

The only expenses of the bride are her presents to her friends who are her bridesmaids with a small gift. The father of the bride pays for the choir if there is a musical service and provides the carpet and awning that are used on the pathway to the altar. He also provides all the carriages used for the guests.

too, to judge by his face. He was somewhat startled when a maid came to his door and he looked up with a rebuke trembling on his lips. But his stern, bitter face, and cold, grey eyes relaxed and softened at the sight of the little figure before him fondly hugging a small, white-sailed yacht. The child's grout brown eyes looked out from little face, framed with a mass of dark hair, and some-thing in their soft, liquid depths told the man that he was not plotting mischief as he had supposed, and the harsh words died on his lips unuttered. "Well, what do you want?" he said, and the girl's face before him lit up with a smile.

"I've brought you my yacht," the child began hurriedly, "I would give it to you, but I don't want to leave you. I'm afraid that I didn't," the child confessed, "but I thought if I came to you and we talked a bit it would be easier."

The quiet speech drew a heavy laugh from Anthony Vandere, and he exclaimed: "You strange child. Where did you get all these ideas? But before you go any further, will you tell me why you value Jack's boat so much?"

"Jack made me the boat. He is my brother, and he's been with me a year ago. I love him, oh, ever so, and I know he'd like me to love you. He said to me lots of times, 'Cris, you'll never be happy if there is somebody you don't love.'"

"Will you love me, Cris?" said Vandere softly.

"No, because I love you now," the child knelt upon the man's knee, placed his little arms about his neck and kissed him.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
Cleaning Straw Hats.
Clean straw hats with a little oxalic acid dissolved in warm water. Shake the hat in the solution and rub all over the hat with it, rinsing the sponge meanwhile in clean water and squeezing it dry. Until the hat is removed. Then sponge it over with clean water and dry it.

Refreshing Black Silk.
If you have a black silk petticoat that has lost its luster and stiffness, it can be greatly improved by being immersed in water and powdered alum, used in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of alum to a quart of water. Shake the silk until it is almost dry, then iron it side with a hot iron. If brown paper is put over the silk before it is ironed it will not be shiny.

Removing Ink Stains.
Ink stains on your blouse can be quite easily removed by making a paste of soft soap and water. Apply this to the spot (any white material can be treated thus), let it soak for several hours, brush off, and, if necessary, repeat the process before washing.

Helps for the Housekeeper.
When sewing carpets, felt or any hard material, if the point of the needle is pricked into a piece of beeswax or wax candle will penetrate the material far more easily.

Tas mantles when past using should not be thrown away. Powder them very finely and apply a little (dry) with a cloth to polished and silver goods. A brilliant polish will result.

THE EVENING STORY
CRIS: A PARABLE
By May Wright.

"I do hope he will like it; I do hope he will. I'm afraid I don't like him very much yet, but I'm going to try hard and love him lots. He looks very miserable and he's dreary and unkind. He whipped Jimmy Brown last week 'cause he broke his window with the catapult, and only the day 'fore yesterday he came out of his house and scolded Molly Barker, only because she was playing in front of his gate. He was so cross with her that she cried and cried. Oh, he's a awful angry man. He told Jimmy Brown that he'd whip him, but I'm not afraid. I'm not being nasty, and I know God'll take care of me. He won't let Mr. Vandere hurt me. I know he won't 'cause I asked him to take care of me and he believed."

"Hello, Cris, where are you going with that yacht? Going to sail to the lake? Cos if you're off, I'll come and help."

"Cris looked up at his friend, and then his great dark eyes roved over the common."

"I'm not going to sail; I'm going to give it away," exclaimed the other; "the yacht your brother made you? Why, Cris, what are you thinking of? Who are you going to give it to?"

"Grammaw's young points."

"I'm going to give it to Mr. Vandere," Cris replied, his voice trembling a little.

"No, he won't. God will take care of me."

"But, Cris, the yacht Jack made you."

"Yes, that's why I'm giving it to Mr. Vandere, and—and—good-bye, Dick," and the child walked away, hugging his yacht. His lips were quivering, for the sacrifice he was making was a tremendous one.

He walked more slowly as he drew near to a seat on which a solitary man was sitting, and his hand sunk on his breast in thought, and gloomy thoughts, away when they see you."

"I was at first," Cris admitted, "but afterwards I remembered that God would take care of me, and I remembered, too, that I must love you, 'cause the Bible says, 'Little children love one another.'"

"But I'm not a child,"

"Doesn't matter. Mother says it means anybody."

"Do you love me?" asked Anthony Vandere, interested in spite of himself.

"I'm afraid that I didn't," the child confessed, "but I thought if I came to you and we talked a bit it would be easier."

The quiet speech drew a heavy laugh from Anthony Vandere, and he exclaimed: "You strange child. Where did you get all these ideas? But before you go any further, will you tell me why you value Jack's boat so much?"

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Gray and Johnson Come Back for Some More Duluth Enthusiasm—Judge Jaques Has Good Meetings and Goes Out for Some More of Them—Jack Writes to Dad About Eberhart—Judge Tift Visits His Many Friends in Duluth—Republican Candidate for Attorney General of North Dakota Declares for Burke for Governor.

James Gray and Fred W. Johnson were in Duluth yesterday morning, leaving early in the afternoon for the Twin Cities. They were guests at the Lenox hotel.

Gray and Johnson were many local Democrats Sunday in Duluth, gathered yesterday to talk with the Democratic candidates, who had glowing stories to tell of the meetings they addressed at Grand Rapids and Cloquet Saturday afternoon and evening. These meetings were taken to be expressive of Northern Minnesota sentiment on the state ticket, and, naturally, Messrs. Gray and Johnson were warmly encouraged by them.

The key was found by Mr. Johnson, in studying and commenting on the range problem, when he said yesterday that the people of that part of the state will not for a moment stand for such politics as is being played by the Republicans, particularly Senator Clapp in the instance of the tonnage tax speech he made at Willmar.

An atrocious pun was perpetrated by one of those who will war with the Republican campaign.

Aside from that, the visit of Messrs. Gray and Johnson, wholly social and incidental in its nature, was entirely enjoyable and enjoyable.

Judge Alfred Jaques, Democratic candidate for congress, was in the city yesterday, coming from Cloquet, where he spoke Sunday night in company with James Gray.

Judge Jaques had a very good meeting, and Fred W. Johnson, candidate for attorney general, had a very good meeting. The Claret meeting was one of the most successful in the campaign. Messrs. Gray and Johnson making speeches that electrified the more or less satirical public in that community. As to Judge Jaques' talk it was one of the best he ever made, and that means he made a lot of votes for himself.

Fired from his continual traveling, Judge Jaques started out again this morning to continue his gallant fight. He spoke tonight at Atkinson, the home of May M. Hedges, who is considered to be a Miller stronghold.

"Miller caught Duluth, that's a cinch," said a Miller worker Saturday. "But I bet he'll get it back in a minute."

As that remark was made before Judge Jaques' presentation of the case against Miller, it is due to be amended as to its terminating effect.

A traveling man who attended the Claret meeting and when going into the hall that he could stay but a minute, as he had to catch a train. He stayed to hear the contest of Judge Jaques' speech, and when he went out he said: "Mr. Clarence B. Miller won't get a vote."

Jack sure is in bad. He gets worse every day. It was all right at the start, when one of the members of the reactionary type welcomed his letters to the public as a pleasing surprise. But this course ceases to be interesting—oh, it is interesting, of course, but not pleasing. There was nothing coming about that, but it was interesting. Too bad, interesting. People look at this column once in a while in the hope of finding in it a letter from Jack to Dad, and when they find it Jack writes a note.

Read this letter: Dear old Dad: My Wisconsin La Follette Republican has been in the city today, hit me on the back and stuck a paper under my nose and said: "Read this, read this. This was an article in Bob La Follette's Weekly Magazine, which simply did not stop to mince matters for one second. It tells just what our man Smith is, and what he stands for, and also tells all about our candidate Eberhardt. If this article is circulated very much around this state, and if there are very many admirers of Senator La Follette in the state, and I understand there are, then in the language of my Wisconsin friend, 'Look out for Mr. Eberhardt.'"

The senator's position has been made for some time through what my Wisconsin friend has been telling me, but I had hoped that he would be quiet. I likewise hope that he does not get wise to the fact that there are people in this district that would like to know how he stands on the election of a Democrat.

Folette simply calls Mr. Smith the tool of the interests of the hard hat. The tool of Mr. Smith. You ought to go out, dad, and buy this week's issue and read that article. I can recommend it to you if you want to keep warm without having a fire in the furnace. Bob ought to be bought off, but the trouble is there is not enough money in the whole world, or yes, to get that. To a follower of Senator La Follette, this article certainly would be good reading, but to our side, well, it don't sound good to us.

You know how we were cleaned up in Wisconsin. It is better to look now as if we're going to get the same kind of medicine in this state. It's beginning to get used to it; that's one consolation.

In my next I will have something to say about Cannonism being dead. I have asked my friend to write me his opinion, and I will send that to you. As ever, JACK.

The consolation of which Jack speaks is a boon that is needed, and will greatly be needed by Dad's ilk after the votes are counted. If the signs of the times are read correctly.

Duluthians interested in politics took an exceptional interest in the visit of Judge C. M. Tift to this city today.

He is the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor and is assistant insurance commissioner. For many years Mr. Tift has been one of the leaders of progressive politics, and it is natural that he should be a nominee for political office at this time, because if elected he will have the disposition and the ability to take that office out of politics, insofar as the term politics denotes the dominance of partisan considerations rather than considerations of the best welfare of the state and its people.

Speaking of the campaign, Judge Tift said this morning that the prospects are good, that he had no doubt James Gray will win a big victory, and that a number of other candidates on the Democratic state ticket will be elected. What he has heard about the range tour of Gray and Johnson, he said, impressed him as being done at a stir without a company.

Just as it is in Minnesota, so it is in North Dakota, so far as the head of the Republican tickets is concerned. The tickets are being held together and there, which means that the election of the Republican party candidate for chief executive, that is what Attorney General Miller, Republican candidate for governor, has done. The following dispatch tells of the happening:

Hettinger, N. D., Oct. 31.—Attorney General Miller, candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket, addressed a large and enthusiastic audience at Minn. hall here.

Mr. Miller gave an interesting and instructive talk on the range problem, and the difference between the Republican and Democratic parties, and clearly showed the cause for the need of progressive legislation.

He explained how the political power of the state had been controlled by the McKenzies, and of its evil effects. He eulogized the work that Governor Burke had done for the state during his administration, and was of the opinion that the best interest of the people of the state, Republicans as well as Democrats, would be served by the re-election of the governor, and that Governor Burke's defeat would mean a backward step in the state for truly representative government. Otherwise he advised his audience to vote the Republican ticket.

He was followed by a number of speakers, and the meeting closed with a song.

Last Day of Registration Brings Out a Fair List.

Total Registration in the City Close to 10,600 Mark.

The registration Saturday was over twice that of Tuesday, the second registration day. With six precincts not reported at the office of the city clerk Saturday, registration was approximately 1,150.

The first day's registration at the primaries was 8,694 and that of the second day, 619, which with that of Saturday, will make a complete registration of 10,600 to 10,600. The results are generally satisfactory, although a full registration of eligible voters would swell the list considerably.

Some of the election officials have been careless about getting their returns into the office of the city clerk. The returns were not in until late in the evening, and there has been no reason why they should have been. At noon today six precincts had not been reported, and the city clerk, although they could have been prepared in a very short time.

The totals at the office of the city clerk apparently do not balance, but this is because the names of those who have left the city or died or moved to some other precinct have been omitted. As far as received the registration figures are as follows:

DOCTORS ARE "TOO FRESH" BOARD WILL NOT RECEDE

State Health Commissioner Says Local Physicians Hold Back Reports.

Claims He Got Impertinent Reply to Letter for Information.

"Don't get saucy," wrote H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health to a local physician to whom he had written, asking for additional information relative to the cause of a death.

It seems that the doctor in question had written an answer to the secretary of the state board, when he asked for information which the secretary deemed impertinent.

In a letter to Health Commissioner Webster Dr. Bracken had much stress upon the importance of getting all information possible relative to the cause of death. He complained that the certificates signed by attending physicians are altogether too indefinite. He stated that if the returns forwarded by the state to the census officials are not complete, the state authorities are severely blamed.

Dr. Bracken asked the health commissioner to have the vital statistics and pull up some of your doctors who are inclined to be a little fresh and saucy." He also enclosed a copy of the letter which he had written to the physician previously mentioned.

The health department has complaints of the conduct of some physicians in reporting deaths. Frequently they do not send them in for several weeks at a time. Several cases have been noticed where the reports did not come in until a year afterward. This interferes with the work of the department. It is also important to the child and the parents of the child that the deaths be properly entered in the records of the health department.

SUIT AGAINST LENOX HOTEL

Irving Mackmiller Fell Down Elevator Shaft and Asks $8,000.

Before Judge Dill in the district court, Irving H. Mackmiller, by his guardian, Philip L. Heffernan, is suing the Lenox Hotel for damages. Mackmiller alleges to have been sustained last spring when he fell down the elevator shaft while employed as operator at the hotel.

He claims that the elevator shaft was not properly lighted, and that after attending to some other duties, he stepped into what he thought was the elevator, but what proved to be only the shaft. He was injured, he claims, and been removed, and he fell from the alley level to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of some ten or twelve feet.

He claims that as a result of the accident he sustained injuries to his spine and back from which he has not yet recovered.

Members Ready to Grant Permits for Telephone Poles in West End.

Do Not Favor Running Telephone and Electric Wires Together.

The board of public works this morning "stood pat" on its position in granting permits to the telephone companies for a large number of poles in West Duluth and the West End.

The board is acting upon the report of City Electrical Inspector Snyder, who declares that stringing telephone and electric light wires upon the same poles is extremely dangerous and should not be allowed. He said that three telephone linemen have lost their lives in as many years because of this practice.

When the board's action in granting permits for the setting of the poles came to the council for action last Monday night, the matter was referred back to the board for further consideration. Alderman Getchell thought that 30-foot poles, which were specified, were too low to allow of other companies using them. His idea was that the number of poles would be reduced by doubling up.

The board, in the communication which will be sent to the council, explains that the poles will be used to put the wires in "leads," doing away with a considerable number of outside wires. They also state the inspector's position relative to the telephone and electric light wires on the same set of poles.

It is probable that the report will evoke considerable discussion when it is read to the council tonight. Inspector Snyder will be present and will go into detail upon the subject if called upon.

PROCTOR DATE FOR McEWEN

Labor Commissioner Will Address Meeting There Thursday Night.

William E. McEwen will make a political speech at Proctor Thursday night. The state central committee has been impetuous from every quarter of the state for Mr. McEwen's services, and to the best of his ability and the best of McEwen's ability to be sent him up here again, but the demands from Proctor became too insistent for him to ignore, and the committee was forced to cancel a date so that he could address the Proctor meeting.

Mr. McEwen will speak at Aurora Friday evening, and at Biwabik Saturday evening. Mr. McMahon is one of the most effective stump speakers in the country and is sure to attract a large audience wherever he talks, as will Andrew Nelson, who speaks at Power Friday evening and at Lily Saturday evening.

Some good speaker will make a speech at Floodwood before election day.

FAY DECLARES
FOR JAKES

Says the Democratic Candidate Will Make an Ideal Congressman.

"I am for Jakes for congress, and I am for him strongly," said Capt. Marcus L. Fay this morning, during a discussion of the political situation. "You may put me down for Judge Wood, but I am not for him."

Efforts to locate relatives of W. B. Wood, the unfortunate cripple who was crowded in his room in the lodging house at 517 West Superior street early Saturday morning, have been futile. He was reported to have come here from Wausau, Wis., but no one can be found there who is any relative of his. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan and will probably be buried at the expense of the county this afternoon or tomorrow.

Interment will be at Park Hill cemetery.

It is thought that Wood set fire to his bed clothing with a pipe which he was smoking before he went to sleep. He had pushed the head of the bed against the door to keep out intruders, but trapped himself, as he was unable to move the bed when he was roused by the flames.

DENIES HE MADE INCENDIARY SPEECH.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Albert B. Kreidler, third vice president of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, today made the following statement in reference to a dispatch sent recently from Denver:

"Through the Associated Press I wish to correct a statement which has been given a wide circulation. Press dispatches have quoted me as saying, in a talk before the labor and labor assembly at Denver, Colo., that 'the newspaper building would blow up before a settlement would be made with the pressmen's union, leading the public to believe I had been advocating the perpetration of such a dastardly deed.' A local publisher made the statement that he would see the building blow up before he would settle with the pressmen's union. In my talk I simply quoted the publisher to show

HERE ARE GOOD FURS AT PROPER PRICES!

IT is just as safe to believe the stranger offering ten dollar bills for 50c—as the stranger comes to town and offers genuine (?) Eastern Mink Furs, worth $135.00, for $30.00.

The chances are that neither the furs or the stranger's bills would be as represented. Fly-by-night sellers of furs alleged to be smuggled are ready enough with all sorts of promises, expecting to be miles and miles away when their deceits are discovered.

Extra Good Models of Russian Pony Coats VERY SUPERIOR QUALITIES

Magnificent Pony Coats, 52 and 54-inch lengths—styles which will be good for years to come as well as this year. Luxurious high collars in notch and shawl effects with large revers—double breasted models—some trimmed with lynx and fox, made up in medium weight—high luster skins, beautifully marked. Prices range $65, $68.50, $75 and up to $250.

We could buy an-called Pony Coats to sell at $35, $39, $45 and $50, but they are not good enough for you to buy. They are made of old skins which have been marked under machine pressure—they lose their luster when worn a little.

Handsome Hudson Bay Seal Coats at $125 to $250

These garments are London seal dyed—they have a lustrous rich seal black surface, shading from dark to light seal brown next the skin itself. Only an expert can tell that they are not genuine Alaskan seal—they are made from the modest Northern muskrat, which has a particularly seal-like pelt and which wears extremely well.

The garments we offer you tomorrow are made from carefully selected skins of highest quality—some of them are trimmed with marten, beaver or fox. Large shawl collars, cuffs and 10-inch bands around the bottom are features of many of them.

Fur Coats of Marmot, Coney and River Mink

Prices on Fur Coats mean little—it is the quality you get for your money that counts. We are most careful to safeguard our customers by selling only furs which will give satisfaction.

We have Coats at $35, $45, $50 and $75 in the furs mentioned above—they are thoroughly good—they look well—wear well—and will be a credit to their wearers.

"Wonderfoot" Silk Stockings $2.00

These fine silk stockings are made by the Kayser, whose famous silk gloves are known for long wear—the foot is protected against wear by an inter-weaving of fine thread on the sole, heel and toe. The top is reinforced so that the garters will not tear them—$2.00 the pair.

IN BUYING FURS—we say to you—buy of local merchants on whom you can depend. There are several stores in Duluth who sell good furs at proper prices—and some very good judges tell us they can do best at our store.

This we know—even a blind man can safely buy Furs here. We have but one price, and that's a fair one—and the quality is the best that fur knowledge and experience can secure for the price!

Genuine Eastern Mink Sets $135 to $375

Our genuine Mink Sets are here in selected skins taken from Eastern mink at the right time. They are not made of scraps or pieces—they are not made of imitations.

Immense Bolster Muffs and Pillow Muffs—large square back or round shawl collars—fancy or plain—natural Fox Sets, $40 to $75 per set. Each and every set worth every penny of its price and not to be duplicated later.

Jap Mink Sets at $35.00 to $125.00

These furs closely resemble the real mink—they wear well and our prices are just and reasonable—you get full value for your money.

Genuine Black Lynx, $100 to $175 per set.
Persian Paw Sets, $40.
Natural Fox Sets, $40 to $50 per set.
Colonial Chinchilla, $22.50 to $57.50 per set.
Blue Wolf Sets at $18.50 to $35.

ELEGANT COAT
Similar to this one $170.00—and worth it!

The $18.50 sets are not really wolf, though they resemble it very closely, and are exceedingly durable and good-looking.

FRENCH CONEY SETS, $7.50 to $18.50 SET.

These are made of pelts which will give excellent satisfaction.

WOMEN'S COATS AT $18.50 TO $45.

New models in very superior qualities. Our salespeople are full of enthusiasm—they declare that our coats are marked at lower prices than they would readily bring. However, we are business in a way that will permanently hold the trade that comes to us.

Here are Novelty Coats—in Kersey—in broadcloth—in chevrot—made up in models of unusual elegance—lined to waist or full lined as may be advisable—some of them are interlined.

HIGH-CLASS TAILORED SUITS AT $28.50 TO $45.

Many new styles in suits have come to hand in time for tomorrow's selling. Uncommon models—refined in every line—tailoring of very superior class—fabrics of highest fashion and sterling worth—colors that are much desired—suits for misses and big women up to 52 bust measure—special measure for women who find the ordinary 36, 38 and 40's are not proportioned to their needs—full bust and narrow back models—short waist models and long waist models—moderate fact, all assortment complete that many are being fitted with very little alteration.

Cry Against New Rules Subsiding—Harvard Team Ranks First.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 31.—The question whether the new football rules have come to stay is within three weeks of being answered with the championship season all but reached. Next Saturday's contests will be the last before the final struggles and the rules committee is reviewing the situation to see if the present game needs changing either back to the original or forward to more open play.

The cry, principally from old players, against modification, has subsided. With the injured list reduced by from 25 to 40 per cent, it is thought the rules committee will make only minor modifications.

In the work of Eastern colleges so far Harvard and Princeton stand at the head, with their goal lines intact and six and five victories respectively. As Harvard has scored a touchdown in every game, and Princeton failed to get to the goal line in the game with Lafayette, winning by a field goal, the Cambridge team is placed first with Princeton second. The naval cadets are third for their goal line also is unscathed, but they have a scoreless tie on their record.

PROPERTY MUST BE RESPECTED

Police Will Tolerate No Rowdy Tricks on Halloween.

Halloween will be celebrated in Duluth tonight, but the police have decreed that it must be a gentlemanly, orderly celebration.

Chief Troyer has announced that the authorities will not permit any destruction of property, the greasing of street car tracks on highways or anything of that nature. The pranks must be of the quiet sort, such as "tick-tacking" windows, scaring the neighbors with jack-o'-lanterns, and picking apples out of tubs of water with the teeth.

Half the regular police force will be out in plain clothes, and in addition in special police. They have strict orders to make arrests where anyone is caught stepping over the lines laid down by the chief. Several boys were brought in last week for breaking a wagon in a too-previous celebration of the day.

MINNESOTA OR RHODE ISLAND?

The issue in the pending governorship campaign is plain, that he who runs may read:

Is Minnesota to remain Minnesota, a free commonwealth, under James Gray, a free man, or is it to become a second Rhode Island, a controlled state, under Adolph Eberhart, a candidate in leading strings?

Is Minnesota to be a free and self-governing citizen-ship, or a pocket borough for the special interests?

There can be no evasion of that issue. There is not, in fact, any attempt on the part of the Eberhart forces to evade it. The campaign for the Republican candidate for governor is wholly unlike the campaigns that are being waged for uncontrolled candidates in other states. It is more like the campaigns of twenty years ago, when candidates and party workers had their pockets filled with railroad passes and their dough bags filled with corporate money, when the campaign speeches were full of high-sounding and month-filling but meaningless platitudes, when all the voter got was a demand that he stand by the party, and when neither men nor issues, but party supremacy, was the aim in the struggle.

On the one hand, in this campaign, is James Gray, a candidate abundantly fitted by capacity, personality and sternness of purpose to be the governor of this state and to lead the people's fight for progress and prosperity and justice. His hands are clean and his hands are free. No man has accused him of being dominated by or dictated to by any special interest. His cause is the people's, his purpose is to fight for the people's rights, and his platform is simply that the people shall have the right to decide on their own policies and shall have public servants who will carry those policies into effect. He has opinions on the vital issues, and he isn't afraid to express them.

On the other hand is Adolph Eberhart, a candidate who comes before the people asking to be elected governor solely because he is a Republican, and because he happens to hold the office through a curious set of circumstances that began with his nomination for lieutenant-governor by Ed Smith that he might form committees in the senate amenable to the will of the special interests, and that was completed by the untimely death of John A. Johnson, which elevated him to the governorship. No claim is made for him that he is fitted to lead the people's fight; no claim is made by him or for him that he will undertake to lead the people's fight. His hands are not clean, because they have been soiled with the dirty work of special interests in the control of the Minnesota senate. His hands are not free, because they are tied by his allegiance to the organization of lobbyists for special interests which is conducting his campaign under the leadership of the Aldrich of the Minnesota senate. The platform on which he stands and the campaign committee by which his fight is being conducted were both arranged by the cabal of special interests which has dominated the Republican organization in this state through three successive terms. His cause is the cause of reaction, of stagnation, of special privilege. His platform is one of evasion and subterfuge, and his public attitude squares with the platform. If he has opinions on the vital issues he is not permitted to express them.

The choice could not be clearer, or the issue more plain.

The election of James Gray means a free people and a free state—the triumph of popular government in a free Minnesota.

The election of Adolph Eberhart means just the opposite. It means turning over the state government to the crew of special interests which dominates the candidate and his platform and will dominate the administration. The election of Eberhart means that Minnesota will become the Rhode Island of the West.

JUSTICE T. D. O'BRIEN.

When you go to the polls Nov. 8, whatever you do with the rest of the ticket, you should not neglect to mark your ballot for Thomas D. O'Brien for justice of the supreme court.

You should do that for the sake of a free judiciary, untrammelled by politics, and because there is no man in Minnesota, on the bench or off the bench, who is better fitted to be a justice of the supreme court than Justice O'Brien.

If the judiciary were divorced from politics, as it will be in this state before very long, there wouldn't be the slightest doubt of Justice O'Brien's election. When fitness for office, and not party labels, determines the selection of judges in Minnesota, such men as Justice O'Brien will head the ticket in the final count. Just now, however, the issue is complicated by the fact that candidates for judgeships must secure party nominations. There is no question as to public sentiment: it is for T. D. O'Brien. The only question is whether enough people will think, when marking their ballots, to cast their votes for the man who, above all others on either ticket, is best fitted to sit on the bench of the highest court in the state.

One of the great sources of the strength of the several Johnson administrations was the high character of his appointments to public office.

The best appointments made by Governor Johnson were the two in which Thomas D. O'Brien figured. In

A FLEA IN THE EAR OF "JIMMY" BOYLE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Haven't heard from you lately have you? I have tried my damndest to keep still during this campaign, but the limit of human endurance has been reached, and I must admit defeat.

At the outset let me state that I believe he comes about as close to being "right" as it is possible for any man, whom I consider a cruel state to be thrown into politics, to be. But about the most I can say is that Mr. Boyle is the most unscrupulous and dishonest man I have ever known.

Mr. Boyle is a man who is not only a liar, but a liar of the first order. He is a man who is not only a liar, but a liar of the first order. He is a man who is not only a liar, but a liar of the first order.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Irish Standard: James Gray, Democratic candidate for governor, delivered his first political speech in this city at the auditorium last Saturday night. Mr. Gray outlined his policy in the present campaign, stating definitely the position he takes on the various issues. He laid special stress on county option as an issue and declared that though he had tried to find out how his opponent stood on this question he was unsuccessful. Herein lies the difference in the two men who are seeking the high office of governor of this state. The Democratic candidate has stated in plain words that he stands for the direct election of United States senators by the votes of the people, for the initiative and referendum for the extension of the principle of the direct primary to state officers, and for the regulation and restriction of the liquor traffic. On most of these questions Mr. Eberhart is significantly silent. When asked to give an explicit statement of his position on these questions his only answer is that he stands on the Republican platform. A man who seeks the highest honor at the gift of the voters of this state ought to have convictions of his own right to know what he thinks. To say that he stands by the Republican platform on matters about which the platform makes a vague general statement is to answer the question.

SCHMITZ IS BOUND OVER

Slayer of George Riley Has Hearing in Municipal Court.

Defense Offers No Testimony to Oppose Evidence of the State.

Frank Schmitz, charged with murder in the third degree for the killing of George Riley, his neighbor at Spring Garden, Oct. 21, was bound over to the next grand jury after a preliminary examination in police court this morning.

The testimony was short. Dr. F. F. Clark, who was deputized as coroner, and who performed the post mortem, described the wound which caused Riley's death. He stated that the bullet broke a large artery in the right arm, causing him to bleed to death.

Chief Tryer, out of a conversation that he had with Mrs. Schmitz, the wife of the accused, after the shooting, he said that she described the affair and stated that Schmitz fired the shot which resulted in Riley's death.

No testimony was offered by the defense. The state's witnesses were cross-examined by Attorney A. E. McManus, who appeared for Schmitz. Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene represented the state.

Schmitz shot Riley under the impression that Riley had tried to kill him the day previous from ambush. He went to the city the same night to try to get a warrant for the arrest of Riley, but he reached town late that the offices were closed. He returned the next morning and succeeded in getting the warrant.

When he returned home he found Riley in his house. He asked Riley what he wanted and Riley replied that he wanted to borrow a horse shoe.

Schmitz then accused him of having tried to shoot him the day before. Riley denied this and Schmitz ordered him out of the house. He claimed that he ordered Riley out three times, and that at the third command he shot Riley through the arm as he stood in the doorway.

Riley ran to the road and dropped about two blocks further down. He was breathing his last as his son and a neighbor reached his side.

The body of Joseph Schmitz, held on a charge of murder in the second degree, was this morning committed to the custody of Judge Enslin in the district court. A. E. McManus will defend him, and he stated this afternoon that he expected to have the prisoner out on bail before night.

Showing $35 and $50 Handkerchiefs

An unusual sight for Duluthians, and one which is attracting wide attention, is the handkerchief display at the Patton & White store. In it are dainty examples of needlework from the embroideries of French convents, the peasants of Madeira, Armenia, Ireland and Switzerland. In this display are handkerchiefs priced up to $40 and $50, and it is said nothing so fine has ever been brought to Duluth before.

W. A. ROGERS IS OPTIMISTIC

Looks for a Prosperous Year in the Iron Business.

W. A. Rogers, president of the Rogers-Brown iron company, is optimistic regarding the iron outlook.

Mr. Rogers, who is a resident of Buffalo, has been in Duluth with several business associates, including D. B. Macnaman, vice president of the Rogers-Brown company, and General Manager Hugh Kennedy of the Rogers-Brown company, who lives at Buffalo, and S. N. Clement, second vice president, who also lives in Buffalo and is president of the Marine National bank.

General business in the iron and steel industry has been surprisingly good this year, considering the depression, and if the railroads had been in the market for equipment and supplies to correspond, it would have been better.

Mr. Rogers, "the industry would have been flourishing. The iron business is just now is toward improvement, and I look forward to a larger confidence that it will prove a larger year than the one now drawing to a close."

"We go from here to Illinois and then we shall go to the steel mills. We should like to visit the Cuyahoga range, where we have some properties, but shall not have time this trip."

In Ohio, Pennsylvania, Buffalo, Chicago and other places the Rogers-Brown company have twenty-four blast furnaces and more than 80 per cent of this blast capacity is in operation now. The company uses ore from its own iron lands, having the Sargeant and Irons mines on the Mesabi range and the Kennedy, Mesabi and Armour mines on the Cuyahoga. At the Kennedy mine the company has almost 100,000 tons of ore in the stockpile, and shafts are being sunk on the Mesabi and Armour properties.

Mr. Silberstein stated that it is progressing nicely. He said that it is one of the most beautiful spots in the city and will be one of the finest drives at the head of the Lakes when it is completed. The western extension of the boulevard has been finished and is now open to the public. Those who have driven over it declare that it rivals, if it does not exceed, the original part of the boulevard for its scenery. The extension runs from Twenty-fifth avenue west to Fifty-ninth avenue west and has been in course of construction the last two years.
